

Sweeping Zoning Changes Before Va. Beach CPC

The Virginia Beach City Planning Commission was to meet Thursday and was expected to give approval to sweeping zoning changes involving a large amount of land in Lynnhaven Borough.

The largest tracts consist of acreage on Rosemont Road at its intersection with the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

The City of Virginia Beach was seeking to have all the land in the area rezoned at present rather than wait until the new road is nearer completion and wait for rezoning applications on separate parcels of land.

The land, now zoned mostly for suburban residences, is located at or near the Rosemont intersection.

terchange of the new road. Council asked for the zoning change to Limited Commercial. The Planning Commission was expected to approve the changes and send its recommendations to Council for final approval and passage.

Other zoning changes expected to receive recommendations of approval from the Planning Commission Thursday were also in Lynnhaven Borough.

Land at or near Virginia Beach Boulevard and Lynnhaven Park and Eureka Avenue was sought for rezoning by City Council from Suburban District 3 to Limited Commercial.

Two automobile agencies and a large shopping center are already being constructed in the immediate area on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Besides the two major changes being sought by Council, the City Planning Commission faced a long docket with applications for use permits and zoning changes in all boroughs of Virginia Beach.

Appointments Announced

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, and Dr. W. E. Shelton, Dean of the Extension Division at V.P.I., have announced the appointments effective December 1, 1966, of three new Extension staff members in the City of Virginia Beach.

The appointments are: Miss Wanda Louise Ferrell, and Mrs. Gloria Hutchinson Baker, Extension Agents, Home Economics; Mr. Glenn Hartwell Updike, Extension Agent, 4-H.

Miss Ferrell has eight years of experience as Extension Agent, Home Economics in Washington and Giles Counties. As a result of her excellent work in Giles County, she was one of three agents selected to attend National 4-H Congress this year. Miss Ferrell received her B. S. degree in Home Economics from Radford College in 1955. Prior to joining the Extension Service in 1956, she taught school in Craig and Botetourt Counties.

Mrs. Baker recently received her B. S. degree in Home Economics from the Appalachian State Teachers College in Boone, North Carolina. During her college years she was named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." Mrs. Baker has been a member of the City of Chesapeake staff since September 1, 1966.

Mr. Updike received his B. S. degree in Animal Husbandry from V.P.I. in 1963. At the end of his Junior year at V.P.I., he worked for six weeks as an Extension Service Aide in Amherst County. Upon receiving his degree in April, 1966, he joined the Extension Service as an agent in Brunswick County. He has worked continuously since that time in Brunswick except for six months' military leave in 1964. Mr. Updike has an outstanding 4-H Club record. He was selected to be a 4-H Star and was also selected for an All Star Scholarship his senior year at V.P.I. He received many awards while a 4-H Club member and while a member of FFA. He was also one of the three Extension agents selected this year to receive a trip to National 4-H Club Congress.

April Primary Election Already Has One Race

The General Election is barely over and already at least one race is set for next April's primary for Constitutional Officers of Virginia Beach.

Richard R. Absolon, 35, announced that he will oppose John V. Fentress, 30, for the nomination of Circuit Court Clerk.

Fentress has held the job since 1961 and has announced that he will seek re-election. In his prepared statement announcing his candidacy, Absolon said, "I seek this position without the promise of any organized support and have made this decision after the urging of many local friends and supporters."

Absolon and Fentress have both been long-time supporters of the dominant Democratic organization in Virginia Beach.

"Realizing that Virginia Beach is a new and rapidly growing city, I feel that the young people should have a stronger voice in the operation of our government," said Absolon in his statement.

He added that he had discussed this candidacy with Fentress and that he has advised the courts that he will resign from his job on the Virginia Probation and Parole Board when he begins his active campaign.

No other candidates have formally announced. April Primary, although Ivan Mapp, Commissioner of Revenue has said he definitely will run. Besides the Clerk's post and the Commissioner of Revenue's job, other offices at stake are City Sergeant, Commonwealth's Attorney and Treasurer.

Lions Sponsor Contest

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Thalia Lions Club has received 12 local entries in Lions International's Peace Essay Contest, President R. G. Thomas, Jr. announced today.

Mr. Thomas said students who still wanted to enter the worldwide $50,000 contest had until December 10, 1966 to submit their entries to the Thalia Lions Club.

"We are pleased with the number of entries so far but we would like to see many more come into our club," Mr. Thomas said.

"Our contestants will be competing against entrants from all over the world for the $25,000 first prize or one of the other awards," he said. In addition to the $25,000 first prize, the contest has eight world division awards each offering a $1,000 prize and a trip to Chicago for the final judging. A total of $50,000 in prizes is being offered.

DPW Gets HEW Grant

A grant of $192,674 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will be used by the Virginia Beach Public Works Department for a solid waste disposal experiment, according to Public Works Director Charles Kiley.

If successful, the project will provide the city with an amphitheater with 5,000 or more seats. The three-year project will begin January 1, 1967.

Kiley said that instead of the old method of burying garbage, the modified plan will build the solid fill in layers to a height of 60 feet. It will include land-use and beautification of the land which will be in the general area of the present sanitary land fill off Bonney Road. Kiley said the old area will also be improved.

The experiment, if successful, highly urbanized cities which now are faced with lack of land and air pollution. Areas before objectionable for land fill projects could be used.

DOWNING ALSO RE-ELECTED

Bond Issue, Byrd And Spon Win Handily In Va. Beach

The voters of Virginia Beach gave an easy victory to the most sweeping bond issue ever placed before the people.

It was not the amount of money that was so important, although $7 million is certainly not to be sneezed at, but the wide scope of the issue. The six questions of the referendum approved money for schools, roads, a new library, a new central communications center for fire companies, the first phase of a giant civic complex at Princess Anne and for implementation of the beginning of the 20-year master plan for recreation.

The most imminent effect of the bond issue will be the construction of two elementary schools in the Princess Anne Plaza area.

In the Senate race, Byrd and Spong, the Democratic Party nominees, won easily in Virginia Beach, as well as statewide.

Byrd ran exceptionally strong in all but a few of the Virginia Beach precincts, some of which he had lost in the July primary. Armistead L. Booth narrowly beat Byrd in Virginia Beach in July.

Byrd's victory in Virginia Beach was a three to one margin.

Spong's margin of victory was about four to one in Virginia Beach. He defeated his opponents in all precincts in the city.

Even in precincts where Robertson had run quite strong in July or in precincts he had won, Spong won by overwhelming majorities Tuesday.

In Virginia Beach I and Virginia Beach II Spong carried handily. In July Robertson won both precincts.

Virginia Beach Democrats carried out an effective but quiet campaign that apparently was successful. The campaign was based on personal contact and door-to-door canvassing.

This method has been an effective tool of the dominant Democratic Organization for several years.

Wash. Woods, although later than usual in reporting because of two absentee ballots, gave its 11 votes to Spong. In the other Senate race, however, Byrd received eight votes and there was one "protest vote" for Carter. Apparently two voters there, one elected for Spong.

Returns were still being counted in the early hours of the morning, as the result of the record off-year turnout of voters and the length of the four ballots.

Thomas N. Downing, who was unopposed in his bid for re-election to the House of Representatives, received a large vote of confidence from Virginia Beach voters.

City Council To Act On Zoning

Virginia Beach City Council is expected Monday to approve a use permit to operate a police precinct and a public library in Bayside.

A public hearing will be held on the proposed issuance of the use permit.

Money to build the public library in Bayside was part of the bond issue voted on Tuesday.

Council will once more take up in public hearing a controversial zoning change, deferred previously.

The application calls for a change in zoning on land at Capital Road and Laskin Road where a building is now under construction.

Now wishes to build a motel and restaurant. An earlier application for a high-rise apartment on the site was turned down.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre Evans sample the hors d'oeuvres

The Carolina June German Club of Virginia Beach launched its Fall and winter social season with a 6 to 8 p.m. cocktail party Friday in the Golf Ranch Motel. It was a full-blown season starter with most Carolinians coming early, staying late and crowding lots of Turkeet-see into the hours between.

That same night, Mr. and Mrs. William McClanan entertained bride-to-be Betty Lou Burton and her fiancé, Bobby Bennett, at a cocktail party in the McClanan home on Dogwood Road. The couple will marry Nov. 26.

DECA Week In Va. Beach

National DECA Week, honoring the Distributive Education Clubs of America, was to be observed in Virginia Beach November 6 through 12.

DECA is the only national youth organization operating through public schools to attract young people to careers in marketing and distribution.

Each Virginia Beach high school has a distributive education program. The students taking part in the program attend classes at the school half of the school day and are employed in local business establishments the other half. They are graded on their working time as well as on school subjects.

During National DECA Week each DE teacher and coordinator scheduled programs to promote distributive education.

The highlight of the week's observance in Virginia Beach came Wednesday night at F. W. Ouz High School with a DECA rally. The host club, under the direction of Everett Sadler, presented a film on marketing and distribution. Officers of each school club for the coming year were also installed.

A Day With Douglas

"Make your garden club piece different," said the chief, "not just the usual 'Mrs. So-and-So spoke and ribbons were won by, etc.'"

Here goes. Mrs. Tom Deacon (Phyllis) whom we thought was in Timbuktu was instead in the lobby of the Cavalier as we arrived for the November meeting of the Linkhorn Park Garden Club. Slightly late and needing courage to enter the Colonial Room where Mrs. David Malbon, president, was already presiding, we begged Phyllis to come along and hear Mrs. C. L. Hersberger speak on "Xmas All thru the House."

"She's going to show us how to make something out of nothing," we tempted. "And we're having lunch though I've got to hurry away afterwards. Come on, you're pretty, and I might even put you in a group picture."

Phyllis, the mother of 7, wears a size 12 dress and always enters into any situation with interest. "I'm settling permanently in Virginia Beach with Patrick and Mary Margaret. The rest are gone and Tom travels a great deal of the time," she whispered. "I'm selling the house on Cattail Road. (Phil has always pronounced, Catayle Road, "Cattail Road")."

We unknit our large, cracking brown paper bag and placed our Thanksgiving display of false flowers and fruit (false is naturally not accepted unless as a minimum part of an arrangement, but the green grapes and ferns were pretty and the red Episcopal prayer book was opened to a Thanksgiving prayer.

Mrs. Hersberger made attractive arrangements for each room in the house. Door displays were made from grass mats, plastic white roses and greenery; a white Clorox bottle with a white tree branch held a number of varied colored birds (one which peered into a miniature nest holding a tiny egg); Santa Claus sleighs were made from plastic tomato containers; door knobs crocheted with a Xmas motif; and, finally, a starched, crocheted Xmas tree, described as one which "can be decorated in any way you wish, since any color can be used with white."

Mrs. J. James Davis, first vice-president and program chairman, introduced Mrs. Hersberger, who is first vice-president of the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs. During lunch, Phil received 3 phone calls. "Some nut ran smack into my new Cortina racer and they're the insurance people calling," she explained. "Take these pine cones and put them in the Cortina outside, and I'll take you wherever. I've got to get a wrap. I'm staying here for a day or two, home back to vote."

We had a cold; the day was windy and cold; we found the Cortina, laden with Georgia pecans, Florida moss, South Carolina yams and what on earth was that 8 foot thing sticking in, out and around the racer? How could we get in? "I forgot to tell you," Phyl said "that's 2 Texas Longhorns, a Christmas gift I brought all the way from Mexico. Don't know where I'll put them. I'm afraid they're too large for an apartment. But I'll find a place. I'm home."

We pushed and shoved, wiggled in the car and took off. "Wish I hadn't had that accident," said Phyl, whom I first met at a League of Women Voters meeting. "I was planning to drag race this car Saturday," she said. "Sure did enjoy the Garden Club."

Galilee Bazaar Set

Headlining upcoming beach bazaars will be Galilee Bazaar, which will be held in Tucker Hall Wednesday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Luncheon will be served.

Handmade and homemade articles, gifts, holiday decorations and a white elephant booth will be featured. A children's booth will be opened at 3:30 p.m. Chairmen are Mrs. Job A. Vandervelde and Mrs. W. C. Overman.

The church is located at 40th and Pacific Avenue.

Chaplain Need Is Great

VIRGINIA BEACH — A great need for chaplains in all branches of the service was expressed recently by Chaplain Chester R. Lindsey, asst. chaplain of the Continental Army Command at Fort Monroe.

Col. Lindsey, who served in the Anhe He region of Viet Nam, told members of the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association that morale of the men is high and they believe in their job.

"We held as many as 135 services a week at an aid station and by the road side," he said. "Often the surgeon gave us priority in case of a fatally wounded man."

Col. Lindsey was one of 27 chaplains serving the Anhe He area.

In 1909 the intersection of Granby and City Hall Avenues was one of the City's busiest.

...Then H. D. Oliver had been serving for 44 years...

Electric trolleys ran up and down Granby Street. The Monticello Hotel stood on the corner, and the many retail stores of the city welcomed shoppers all along Granby Street. In those years H. D. Oliver was already established as one of the city's most respected names, providing complete and well handled burial and funeral services.

Today H. D. Oliver still holds its place as the city's finest in its field. Two fine homes, including the newest at Virginia Beach, an experienced capable staff and the backing of 100 years enable H. D. Oliver to serve your every need.

Educators Study Beach System

By Douglas Barnes
Sun Correspondent

Understanding, patience and sympathy are vital in educating the slow learner, Dr. Richard A. Meade, University of Virginia education professor, told the Orientation Conference on the Slow Learner in High School English.

"Slow learners are not necessarily no learners," Dr. Meade told educators who recently attended the statewide two-day conference held here.

The conference was part of the pilot study by the state to develop statewide curricula for high school remedial English students.

"The Virginia Beach curriculum guide, established three years ago, is the most comprehensive guide of its type of which we are aware," said Wayne S. Bowman, supervisor of English, State Board of Education. "We wished representatives to see the program in action."

The group toured Kellam, Princess Anne, Cox, First Colonial, Union, Kempsville, Kempsville and Bayside high school on the second day of the conference.

S. Elmer Tarrell, high school supervisor of Virginia Beach schools, was coordinator for the workshop.

Other speakers included Dr. Alton L. Taylor, supervisor of pilot studies for the Virginia Dept. of Education; Paul Slayton, asst. professor of Education at Mary Washington College; Bessie G. Walker, asst. supervisor of English, State Department of Education; Virginia H. Clarke, Dinwiddie County English teacher; and Constance W. Payne, chairman of English, Bayside High School.

Distinguished Military Student

LeRoy Graduates

GREAT LAKES, ILL. — Seaman Recruit Charles G. LeRoy, 21, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. LeRoy of 4985 Paint Lane, Virginia Beach, Va., has been graduated from nine weeks of Navy basic training at the Naval Center here.

In the first weeks of his naval service he studied military subjects and lived and worked under conditions similar to those he will encounter on his first ship or at his first shore station.

In making the transition from civilian life to Naval service, he received instruction under veteran Navy petty officers. He studied seamanship, as well as survival techniques, military drill and other basic subjects.

BLACKSBURG — Thirty-two Virginia Tech cadets—12 Air Force and 20 Army—have been designated as distinguished military students.

The seniors receiving the designation were announced at the annual Homecoming review of the Corps of Cadets.

The students are selected on the basis of their academic achievements, their extracurricular activities and their desire for a career in the service. Each cadet will be offered a regular commission in his respective branch if he continues his outstanding work.

Col. Edward D. Fitzpatrick, professor of military science, said one of the 20 Army cadets receiving the designation was Frederick H. Knack of Virginia Beach.

A new peach variety that may be marketed after the commercial crop of the Elberta most varieties of peach and season has been sold has been released recently, according to Dr. George D. Oberle, horticulture professor at Virginia Tech.

It is the Monroe variety, selected from a population of seedlings resulting from crossing Rio Oso Gem with an unnamed Virginia Tech seedling. The Virginia Tech seedling came from a cross of Shipper's late Red with Sunhigh.

Oberle says trees of Monroe will be available this winter from 10 commercial nurseries.

"The Monroe fruits are above average in size, with bright, attractive skin color, very firm flesh and exceptionally good flavor for a peach ripening so late in the season," says Oberle. "The trees are above

Hooks Ends Course

MEMPHIS, TENN. — Airman Apprentice William R. Hooks, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennett H. Hooks of 3021 Kempsville Road, Virginia Beach, Va., has completed the Aviation Mechanical Fundamentals School at the Naval Air Technical Training Center in Memphis, Tenn.

The four-week course introduces students to mathematics, physics and the principles of electricity. Subjects stressed include atomic theory, static and dynamic electricity, magnetic theory and the construction of aircraft batteries.

This month-long course prepares Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard personnel for entrance into more advanced courses at the center.

Big Day Ahead For Munford

Strong men have fainted at the sight of a hypodermic, but when interviewed, Richard Tayloe Munford of 1648 Bailey Lane seemed to have no fear of the needle.

The Tidewater Chapter of the American Red Cross has described him as their "man of the year."

"Tomorrow the minds, thoughts and hearts of most Americans are with our fighting men, past and present, for it is Veteran's Day.

It is also a proud day for Munford who celebrates his 49th birthday and his second wedding anniversary.

Richard Tayloe Munford

At 3:30 p.m. at the fire station behind the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center, U. S. Representative Thomas N. Downing will present a 10-gallon donor pin to Munford. On October 21, 1949, when the Red Cross Bloodmobile began serving the Tidewater area, Munford was the first volunteer donor.

In explaining his reaction to this day of pride for himself he said, "I'm an ex-Marine and when I was wounded in World War II, I was given lots of blood. I am not a glory hound; I feel better physically after I've given a pint of blood."

"I've given to sick children, heart patients, etc., and I hope—if I'm lucky—to go up to 200 pints before I'm 60 years old. I guess I'm just disgustingly healthy."

When asked about his job, he said with a grin, "I'm used to being called the dog catcher. We're really the Bureau of Animal Control. I assist Supervisor Russell Reid. I like animals and I like my job."

Concert To Aid Hospital

VIRGINIA BEACH — The internationally known concert pianist, Clifford Barner, will present a concert for the benefit of the Auxiliary to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

The concert will be given at 8:30 P.M. on Sunday, November 20 at Princess Anne High School. Funds contributed at the concert will be used toward the purchase of an additional obstetrical delivery table at the hospital.

Tickets are available on the day of the concert at the auditorium or at the shop of Martha Brown and at Alexander-Baughman in advance of the date.

The program will be worked by the concertgoers, as well as by the hospital's volunteers.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH SUN VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA

Thursday, November 17, 1966

can't is here

The birth, or in the case of the Virginia Beach Sun, rebirth of a newspaper is always accompanied by a swarm of rumors.

"The Hearst chain is putting a lot of money into it," goes one.

"They're bringing in Rumplestiltskin to run it," goes another.

"I understand they're paying you $15,000 a year," says a third. (This is a gross untruth. I'm being paid three times that amount.)

About 98 per cent of the rumors have no basis. (Rumplestiltskin, however, was considered for awhile.)

Fact is, the new Sun is being financed by a group of Virginia Beach business and professional men, some of whom want a good newspaper for their hometown, some of whom hope to make a little money on their investment and some of whom want both.

A part of the money they put up went to buy a new offset press with a host of new accessories. The old flatbed letterpress press which looks like one half of a steam locomotive with the boiler removed was removed, possibly for use as a boat anchor.

In the letterpress method of printing, the ink is put on raised letters which contact the newsprint, making an impression.

In the offset method, ink is applied to letters (which, incidentally, are NOT raised above the surrounding surface) on a metal plate. The ink is then "set off" onto a rubber roller which transfers the impression to the newsprint.

The process is a little more complicated than the above description would have you believe and if you would like to learn more about it drop by the plant anytime. We might even find a pretty girl to show you around.

One thing you may notice immediately about this, our first, issue printed on the new presses is that the photographs are clearer than on letterpress. (You may also notice some errors. Bear with us. We are told that the changeover from letterpress to offset is of cataclysmic proportions and that few publications make it without temporary scars.)

(Franklin publisher Hanes Byerly, a survivor of the changeover from letterpress to offset, describes it as a "nightmare." But then Hanes is given to understatement.)

We are not immodest enough to boast that we will have the best paper in the area. We do hope, however, that it will keep you informed and entertained. (If it doesn't, don't call and try to cancel your subscription. You don't have one. The new Sun is sent free, by mail, to more than 33,000 homes in Virginia Beach.)

If you live in Virginia Beach and don't get the paper and would like to have it, just let us know and we'll send it to you. If you live outside of Virginia Beach it'll cost you money to have it mailed to you.

Now, any questions? You, sir, you want to know who really is running the paper?

Well, the general manager is Jim Coates who keeps a tight grip on the purse strings; the advertising manager is Jim Simmons who has 108 years experience in producing attractive ads; and the managing editor is, uh, well, the managing editor is some guy whose name escapes me at the moment.

History of News Told at Beach

The story of newspapers in Virginia Beach is almost obscured by time and dim memories.

Files yellow with age and are thrown out. The past becomes hazy.

One of the first newspapers was published at Pungo.

Another early paper was the Princess Anne Times, the first issue of which appeared on Friday, May 14, 1915. There was a third newspaper published back then. It's name escapes the recollections of many of the older residents of Virginia Beach.

One of the bylines in the first issue of the Princess Anne Times was that of Amos Johnston Ackiss who in 1924 established his own newspaper, the Virginia Beach Weekly.

The Virginia Beach Weekly was the first substantial segment of the press at Virginia Beach. The others were published only briefly.

An early issue of the Virginia Beach Weekly is in possession of Herbert Terry, president of the Virginia Beach Savings and Loan Association. It consists of eight pages and contained news about proposed financing of the boardwalk. Terry worked on the paper a couple of years.

The Virginia Beach Weekly was acquired in the late 1920's or early 1930's by the late Congressman Joseph Deal and the name was changed to the Virginia Beach News. The News remained in the Deal family until January 1952 when it was acquired by the Virginia Beach Sun.

In March 1952, the Princess Anne Free Press was established by J. Wilcox Dunn, a cursading editor who won the Elijah Lovejoy Journalism award and who was written up in Time and Newsweek.

An illness in the family and economic problems caused the Free Press to fold in 1962.

The Virginia Beach Sun was established in 1949 and presses, brought here from Ohio, were readied. A cocktail party was planned for the first issue. Dignitaries arrived. The pressman pushed the switch. Nothing happened.

Two weeks later the trouble was ferreted out and the presses started to roll.

When the Sun acquired the News the publication was called the Sun-News. Later, News was dropped from the nameplate.

Today a new era starts in newspapering at Virginia Beach. This time the presses started when the switch was thrown.

Council Synopsis

Earlier this week, Virginia Beach City Council ran afoul of the Federal government, but not seriously.

In a recent application for federal funds to be used in the purchase and development of Green Run Farm, a provision that the city would make arrangements to move or relocate the lone resident on the property was not followed, according to the federal government.

Council rectified the technicality, and appropriated $400 for such purpose should it become necessary and the city gets the property in the first place.

An application by Birdneck Towers, Inc. to build a motel on property at the entrance to Birdneck Point on Laskin Road was denied, in spite of Planning Commission approval with certain restrictions.

Through their attorney, E.T. Caton, III, residents of the area said their biggest complaint was that the developer had not come forth with any actual plans for a motel on the property.

An earlier plan to construct a high-rise luxury apartment there was denied earlier.

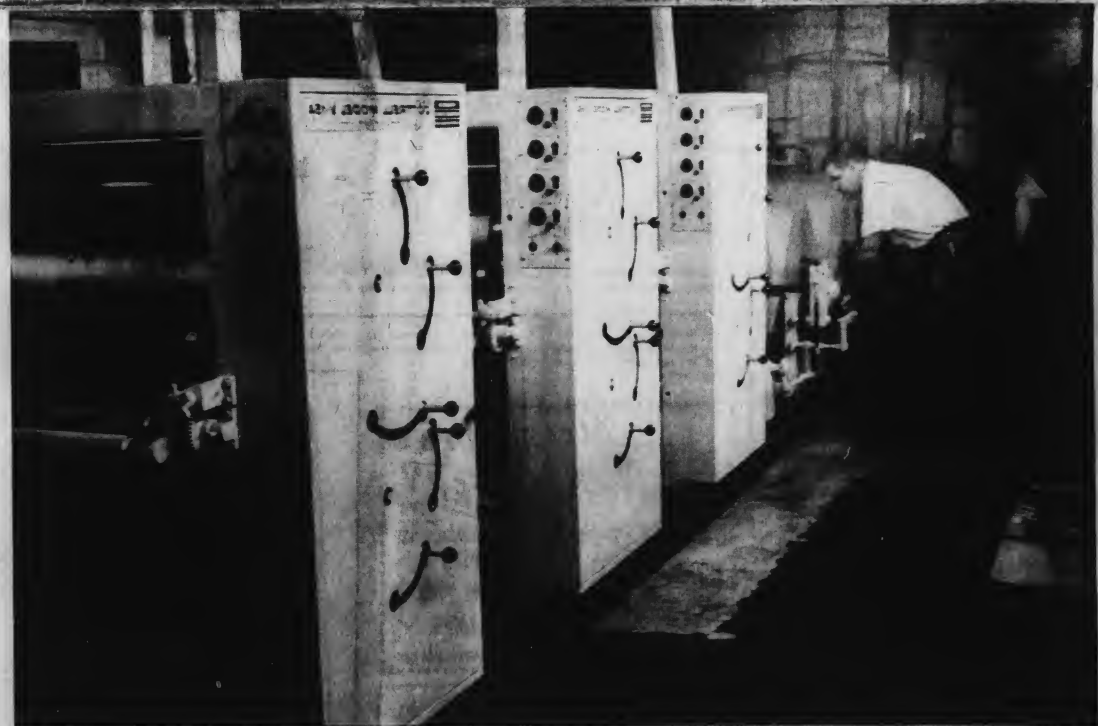

In other action, City Council approved a location in Bayside (See Council Page 5)

Out Goes the Old

One way of stopping the presses is to take a sledgehammer to them. Here a workman breaks up the old flatbed press which was sold for junk.

In Comes the New

Gleaming new offset presses were installed in place of the old ones. Here Bob Smith, Virginia Beach Sun composing room foreman, makes an adjustment to them.

Let 'Em Roll

Virginia Beach Sun Goes Offset; Largest in Area

The Virginia Beach Sun this week joined the growing number of weekly and small daily newspapers which are published on web offset presses.

To the readers this means clearer photographs and printing.

To the publishers it means versatility, economy and speed.

Since its establishment in 1949, the Sun has been printed on a Goss flatbed press using type cast from molten lead.

Ink was rolled on the type and from which it was transferred a to the newspaper pages.

With offset, the printed words of weekly and small daily newspapers are typed and pasted to a large sheet of paper. Pictures are also pasted on the sheet which is then photographed.

The photograph of the printed page is transferred to a light-sensitive plate.

Ink adheres to the words and pictures on the plate and is set off onto a rubber roller which transfers the impression to the newspaper page.

For its presses, the Sun chose the Cottrell Model V-15A made by the Cottrell Company of Fort Worth, Texas, a division of the Harris Intertype Corporation.

This press is a ruggedly built, streamlined machine designed to print up to 15,000 papers per hour. It measures 30-feet long and is nine feet wide.

One decided advantage the new press has over the old one is that it will print in color.

This advantage will enable the Virginia Beach Sun to compete with metropolitan newspapers for more sophisticated advertisements.

A host of accessories were purchased to complement the new press. Among these accessories are two Justowriters, type-setting machines which permit each line of type to be evened up with the margins of the columns; a Morisawa photo typesetter for preparing headlines; and machinery for making offset engravings.

The papers will be sent out by mail, addressed by a computerized Addressograph machine.

The machine will put addresses on about 10,000 newspapers an hour and separate them into mail carrier zones.

The 35,000 address plates are stored in a compact cabinet full of trays. The cabinet by 40 inches, each of which weighs about 800 pounds, to put out one edition of the Virginia Beach Sun.

Total cost of the entire new operation is in excess of $500,000.

Professional Fees for Pharmacists

Druggists Reluctant to Change

Not long ago a young woman went to a doctor for a severe allergy. The doctor prescribed 25 antihistamine tablets. When the young woman had the prescription filled the 25 pills cost her $8.50.

She was stunned by the cost since she was employed by the manufacturer of the pills prescribed and since she happened to know the wholesale price --100 for $5.50.

The drugstore where she purchased the pills had realized a profit of about 300 per cent.

"Why," the young woman was asked, "didn't you get the pills from your employer? Surely you get a discount, being an employee."

"It was a weekend," she replied, "and I had to have the pills. I couldn't wait until Monday."

Such apparent overcharges have roused the ire of U. S. Senator Russell B. Long of Louisiana and he is planning a probe of the drug industry. "I and my staff are laying extensive plans as far as exposing some of these reprehensible practices to the public, but such specifics as the date and scope of the investigation is not firm at this time," Long wrote to the editor of the Sun.

"There is a need for policing, especially on the sales end," Wallace Klein, past president of the Virginia Pharmaceutical Association, said not long ago.

And the drug industry can expect more controls--some from the Federal government and some from the industry itself, according to a prediction by Warren Weaver, dean of the Medical College of Virginia School of Pharmacy.

Even with such self-examination, the drug industry can still make a good case for the high cost of pills.

E. Claiborne Robins, president of A. H. Robins Company, Inc., Richmond, said recently that the oil companies can expect one well out of 12 or 15 to produce. But the drug manufacturers, in research for new products to combat oil, will drill 2,500 "dry holes" before finding one good marketable medicine. The cost of this research is what puts the price of drugs so high.

On the retail end, the pharmacists like to make this point: They have up to 5,000 drugs on their shelves. But the average doctor prescribes for only about 300 of these. Thus, a lot of drugs lie around on the shelf--ready for use but never called for-- until they are outdated and must be thrown out.

As a result, your friendly neighborhood pharmacist often finds himself squeezed between drugs he can't sell but must carry for your protection -- and irate customers who scream when they must fork over $8.50 for 25 pills to make them comfortable.

There is, however, a plan which may make the pharmacist's lot a lot easier. This plan has been accepted in other parts of the nation but has met with small success in Tidewater Virginia.

It's simply this: Instead of marking up the wholesale price of a drug (sometimes exorbitantly) the pharmacist charges you the whole sale price plus a flat fee. The pharmacists call it a professional fee and they compare it to the fees doctors, lawyers, dentists and architects charge.

This plan was discussed widely throughout the American Pharmaceutical Association in 1962. The Journal of the A. P. H. A. told how pharmacists could calculate a fair fee. But in Tidewater at this writing only one drugstore--the one at DePaul Hospital in Norfolk--is using the fee system and the pharmacists there is reluctant to discuss it.

Harvey J. Meltzer, secretary of the Tidewater Pharmaceutical Association, isn't so hesitant to talk about the fee system.

"Many pharmacists will agree informally that the 'professional fee' is the most logical way to receive compensation for a professional service such as that rendered by the pharmacist when he fills a doctor's prescription order," says Meltzer.

"These same pharmacists, however, are reluctant to make the change from the 'mark-up' system. Outside forces--government and insurance compensation programs--are forcing a re-evaluation of the system. If the public feels as some of us do, that compensation for professional service should be by a professional fee," says Norman Sachs, second vice president who lives in Virginia Beach but works in Norfolk. He says the rapid growth of the city is responsible.

Other officers are George W. Detterman, Jr., president, and Joseph W. Dietrich, president-elect, who lives at Virginia Beach but works in Norfolk.

Directors who live at Virginia Beach are R. W. Clyburn, William P. Irwin and Linwood S. Leavitt who is also a member of the Virginia State Board of Pharmacy.

Also residents of Virginia Beach are Dalton McCoy, who is on the membership committee and David W. Bell, chairman of the installation committee.

tion thus lowering the cost of treatment with higher priced drugs. The used of lower cost medication will bear his proper share of the cost of his pharmaceutical service."

Pharmacists elsewhere in the nation say that when they changed over to the fee system not one person complained. "The net income was practically the same and the prices did not vary a great deal from our old schedule," said one.

Even the pharmacists who still use the mark-up system agree that the fee system would restore to them some of their professional status they lose when they sell a commodity instead of a service.

The editor of the A. P. H. A. Journal in 1962 called the professional fee method "economically sound, fair to all."

Since then, though, few discussions have been held about the fee system.

Fort Story Training Ground for Vietnam

Thousands of soldiers performing ship-to-shore operations on remote beaches today in Vietnam learned how to "hit the beach" and move cargo at Ft. Story.

As the major amphibious training post in the Army, Ft. Story is the headquarters for all Lighter Amphibian Resupply Cargo (LARC) vehicles of the Army and their operating units. The LARC units now serving in Vietnam are a vital part of the support units in Southeast Asia where troops must be supplied with needed material.

With a beach frontage of almost four miles, access to two major bodies of water and 1,400 acres of hilly terrain, crude marshlands and man-made lakes, Ft. Story is not only an ideal location for training soldiers in amphibious operations but also provides a realistic training ground for jungle warfare. Utilizing the overgrown snake-infested swamps of the past forest from other branches of military service also train at Ft. Story.

This coastal installation is the amphibious part of a transportation training complex that is centered at Ft. Eustis, Va., commanded by Maj. Gen. William N. Redling. Ft. Story, surrounded inland by the city of Virginia Beach and on the shore by the Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic Ocean, is the headquarters of the Army Support Element, Col. John R. Williams is commanding officer.

The post also houses one of the Army's Nike-Hercules units and several non-Army activities which include the Navy Harbor Entrance Control Base, a Government Weather Station and a facility of the Treasury Department.

Mostly, the LARCs now in use at Ft. Story and Vietnam are the widely-used LARC V and the LARC IX, a Gargantuan vehicle which can transport a LARC V. Another amphibian, the LARC XV, is currently undergoing testing at Ft. Story and is larger than the LARC V, but smaller than the LARC IX.

The LARC V, after being designed and tested by the Transportation Research Command at Ft. Eustis, were moved to Ft. Story in 1962, and replaced the DUKWs which were employed in World War II and the Korean conflict.

As amphibians, the LARCs are sophisticated pieces of equipment. They can travel on land and water, operate on a slope - ascending or descending, perform in all types of climate and moor along side a larger vessel.

Utilized to transport cargo from one mode of transportation to another, the LARCs, besides being used in Vietnam, have also been used in Greenland and France.

Units operating the LARCs work hand in hand with terminal service units, which also receive realistic training at Ft. Story. It is the responsibility of terminal service personnel to load and unload cargo from one mode of transportation to another.

Working in conjunction with cargo ships from the Naval Amphibious Base at Little Creek as well as with the LARC companies, the terminal service units can be seen in the waters along Ft. Story undergoing logistics over the shore (LOTS) for storing ammunition. Ft. Story once boasted the heaviest armament of any Atlantic coast fort.

The LARC companies also support the classes of the Amphibian Training Branch of the Army Transportation School. Active located at Ft. Story, every six weeks, 50 students there on April 26, 1967, at Cape Henry, now within the boundaries of Ft. Story, Cape Henry is on a point of land that juts out into the water near the Army's center of amphibian training. It served the Ocean and the Chesapeake Bay Army originally as an artillery merge.

Ft. Story has not always been the place where the Atlantic Army originally as an artillery merge. In 1914 the Virginia General Assembly ceded to the Army the land including and surrounding Cape Henry, but it was not until 1917 that Ft. Story was actually established as a Coast Artillery fort guarding the southern entrance to the Chesapeake Bay.

The post was named for Maj. Gen. John Patten Story, who as a former chief of the Artillery School at Ft. Monroe, contributed to many developments in range-finding equipment and the science of gunnery.

Underground cement bunkers, which are still in use, were built for storing ammunition. Ft. Story once boasted the heaviest armament of any Atlantic coast fort.

Over 300 years before the Army settled at Ft. Story, a group of English colonists landed there on April 26, 1607, at Cape Henry, now within the boundaries of Ft. Story, Cape Henry is on a point of land that juts out into the water near the Army's center of amphibian training. It served the Ocean and the Chesapeake Bay Army originally as an artillery merge.

To commemorate that landing before the colonists journeyed further inland to settle in Jamestown, the Daughters of the American Colonists erected a stone cross on Cape Henry. A community Easter Sunrise Service and the Cape Henry Memorial Service are conducted at this spot yearly.

Standing on a knoll across the road from the cross is another historical feature at Ft. Story, the old Cape Henry lighthouse. Built in 1791, it was the first lighthouse on the east coast. It operated until 1881 when it was replaced by the Coast Guard's taller lighthouse currently in use.

Presently the old lighthouse, a tourist attraction, is owned by the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities.

In 1944 Ft. Story was the site of an 1,800 bed convalescent hospital which treated over 13,000 World War II soldiers before it closed in 1946. Later that same year the Army amphibians were first brought to Ft. Story, establishing the post as a permanent amphibious and terminal service training center for the Army.

The Professional Fee System

Elsewhere in this issue of the Sun appears an article on professional fees for pharmacists, a little-known system under which your friendly, neighborhood pharmacist charges for services rendered.

Only one pharmacist in the Tidewater area charges fees. All the others price their medicine as they price their toy balloons plastic floats, chewing gum and ice cream. They buy them wholesale, mark them up and sell them to you retail which, as some pharmacists point out, hurts their professional image by making them nothing more than merchants.

Under the fee system, the pharmacist buys his pills and condiments wholesale and sells them to you wholesale—adding a charge for filling your prescription. The transaction has a professional atmosphere about it. (Indeed, the trend in drugstores is now back to the old-time apothecary where only drugs are dispensed. You won't find a toy balloon anywhere.)

Pharmacists in the Tidewater area might do well to discuss the professional fee system among themselves—and with the public—airing both the pros and cons. Too few people have ever heard of the professional fee system although at other places in the nation it has met with acceptance.

The Case for Voting Machines

It was as late as 3 A.M. Wednesday morning, eight hours after the polls had closed on election day, before the final tally was completed in some precincts in Virginia Beach.

The reasons are many but three stand out. Some precincts are simply getting too large. There were four long ballots this time. And the voter turnout was exceptionally large.

City Council has already received an initial study concerning the use of voting machines in the larger precincts. The approximate cost would be $60,000 for two voting machines in 15 of the larger precincts. Virginia Beach I and II already have the machines.

In the recent election, actual voting was slow, since voters had to read and digest all the questions on all four ballots, but counting each of the separate questions was far slower.

The world waits with baited breath for election results these days, but the baited breath turned to a yawn and finally to a snore before some of the results were tallied in Virginia Beach.

With voting machines, the tally could be taken just after the polls close; the world would know the results fast; and best of all, the precinct clerks and judges who came to work prior to 6 A.M. could get finished much earlier and go home.

With voting machines there is no margin for "human error", and no one is going to challenge a voting machine on its integrity.

The case for voting machines in Virginia Beach is a strong one, and Council should get them before the next election.

That's not too far away, so we hope Council acts quickly in the matter.

Before More Milk is Spilled

Now that the Virginia Beach Council of Civic Clubs has decided to join the Norfolk Federation of Civic Leagues in its continuing efforts to bring about the death or at least a reduction of power of the State Milk Commission, perhaps we will finally find out just what the commission does.

The State Milk Commission is evidently so strong that it can tell a gripping group in a given area that it does not wish to listen or leave and the area has no recourse.

Under the rules of the game the milk commission sets the maximum price that milk can be sold for. Several groups, including the ones in Norfolk and Virginia Beach feel that the price of milk could better be set, and probably cheaper, by competition, private enterprise and all that.

The State Milk Commission was set up as a temporary group to keep the lids on the milk cans, literally. Milk wars were going on and milk was being spilled in the streets in protest of prices. That was more than thirty years ago. The State Milk Commission, like the "temporary" Federal income tax, has become an institution.

There is a good possibility that the milk commission is still an absolute necessity, but it is also possible that it is an outworn and outmoded institution.

What would seem to be called for is an opening of the doors of the commission, so that the general public may finally see just what goes on there and why. If it is still needed, then investigation and education cannot hurt. If it is not, then it is high time investigation found it out.

Maybe enough voices have been raised in Tidewater this time to run a complete check on the price-fixing agency and to stop the crying over spilled milk.

Old Signs Day

Most civic and/or service organizations have projects—worthy undertakings such as raising money for the blind, the crippled, the poor and the sick.

Fine.

So widespread is their benevolence, that few projects remain and somewhere in Virginia Beach there must be an association whose members are sitting around wringing hands for want of something to do.

We offer, gratis, for their consideration this project: Scrap Old Signs Day.

The purpose: Get rid of hundreds of obsolete, derelict signs that are an eyesore to all who look at them.

In the process, the association can earn itself some civic merit badges. And some good publicity.

The sponsors of Scrap Old Signs Day might like to include in their labors the removing of old political campaign posters from telephone poles and street signs.

I'll make the city prettier. Ah, ah, don't thank us for the idea. We got it from somewhere else.

G.I. Bill Will Pay For Part-Time Classes

Editor's note: Below are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to some of the many current questions from former servicemen and their families. Further information on veterans benefits may be obtained at any VA office.

Q. I am a service connected veteran injured during the time of the Berlin Airlift. Can I borrow $2,000 under the new G. I. Bill to help start a shoe business?

A. No. Business loans are not included in the new G. I. Bill. But you are eligible for vocational rehabilitation for training to help prepare you for a gainful occupation. See your nearest VA Regional Office.

Q. I am a veteran's child eligible for war orphan's educational benefits. If I am called into active duty immediately after my 18th birthday without having had an opportunity to take advantage of educational benefits, will my eligibility be extended?

A. Yes. Where an eligible person serves on duty with the Armed Forces after his 18th birthday, but before his 23rd birthday, his eligibility ends five years after his first discharge, or release from such duty.

Q. If I attend school under the new G. I. Bill less than half time, will I receive any benefits?

A. Yes. You will be paid the rate of established charges for tuition and fees not to exceed $50 if more than one-half time to one-half time; not to exceed $35 if one-half time or less.

Should Parents Send Their Children to Sunday School

Yes, all boys and girls should be sent to Sunday School, but better still parents should accompany their children to Sunday School.

There are many things a parent can give their children—love, security, education, but one of the greatest gifts is "spiritual training." This can be found in no better place than the home and in the Sunday School. The child who is placed in the Sunday School at the earliest possible age is far richer by this gift than all the material things you can give him. As he is promoted each class provides stepping stones toward spiritual maturity and helps him understand himself and his relationship with God. Through wise teaching children may mature in the Christian life with a thoughtful and sensitive understanding of the Holy Spirit.

As a member of the Nursery department, he learns that God made all the wonderful things about him. The sun, moon, stars, rain, birds, and flowers and many other wonderful things. He learns to share with his friends and helps his teacher with a smile.

As a Beginner he learns how to pray and develop an awareness of God. The proudest time in a Primary's life is the day he receives his very own primary book to take home for mother to read to him. His seeing eye and listening ear is being developed.

Juniors learn of Jesus and His great love. Most all Juniors accept Christ as their Savior in their junior year and look to Him as their guide and example in daily living.

During the Intermediate year, the Intermediates learn much about the Bible as well as learning how to reap the greatest benefit from a Christian life.

The young people's class is one of the most important in Sunday School. It is in this class that they make decisions that last a life time—deciding on a vocation, and choosing the right kind of a marriage partner with prayer and intelligence.

In the adult class one is taught to accept his responsibilities, and is encouraged to become a better Christian, a better parent, a better worker and train those who are dependent upon him.

Thus, a person who has attended Sunday School throughout his life finds love and comfort in all uncertainties and uses his talent for Christian Service.

Yes, all boys and girls should attend Sunday School. The first modern Sunday School had its beginning in England in the year 1780 when Robert Raikes, a printer and publisher, became interested in the neglected children and established a Sunday School for them. It worked wonders with the children and Raikes through his paper urged the starting of Sunday School throughout England. John Wesley wrote to his friend Raikes— "This is one of the best institutions that has been seen in Europe for many centuries."

Today all over the world the Sunday School holds a very important place among institutions. The Home first, the Church second, and the Sunday School third.

Emrhæ Ford to Have Car Clinic

Here's what Emrhæ Ford's new Building will look like when completed.

BY JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR.

Emrhæ Ford is moving west, but not too far west. The new and used car dealership which has been for many years two blocks off the ocean front on 17th Street is moving to a new location between London Bridge and Princess Anne Plaza.

Construction on the showroom, truck and car leasing department and service department will begin in a few days. The 30,000 square foot building on a seven acre site will cost about $750,000.

Although the entire operation will not be completed until about June 1 new and used cars are already on sale at a temporary building at the site. The lot is brightly-lighted at night by large mercury-vapor lights.

At completion, the dealership will be capable of displaying 100 cars and of storing up to 500 new vehicles, according to Bill Nevins, General Manager.

It will be the first Ford dealership on the east coast to have the complete Ford Rotunda Equipped Diagnostic Center according to owner Rhae Adams.

The diagnostic center will enable the agency to perform new services and explain the diagnostic procedures to customers immediately.

The designing and supervising architect on the new building is Lazzio Aranyi, AIA.

Emrhæ's building will be at one end of the new automobile-oriented "Center on Wheels" shopping center, RK Chevrolet will be at the other end.

About 100 persons will be employed at the new Emrhæ dealership. About 200 cars are expected to be sold on the retail market each month, and the anticipated sales volume is anticipated to top $7 million annually.

Bayside Beaten Marlins End Season

BY BOB WHITMORE
Sun Correspondent

The Bayside Marlin football team almost pulled off the upset of the year last Friday night when they came within 26 yards of defeating a scared Great Bridge team. After leading at the half, the Marlins lost by six points when the Wildcats intercepted a Bayside pass on the Great Bridge 20, ending the last threat by the Marlins. Great Bridge won the hard-fought game, 13 to 7.

The Marlins came into the game with visions of astounding the Eastern District by upsetting the Wildcats, holding a 25-game winning streak. One of the winning games was Great Bridge's rolling of Bayside, 68-0, last year. The Marlins lead off at the start with blitzing defense. This defense set up the first score of the game, when Wildcat quarterback Tommy Rhodes was hit fading back, fumbled, and Bayside's Joel Spencer recovered to race 35 yards for the T.D. Quarterback Mark Laubach ran the extra point, and Bayside took an early lead, 7-0.

Great Bridge continued to play bad ball until midway in the second period, when a Bayside fumble on the Marlin 14 was recovered by the Wildcats. Three plays later halfback Lewis Johnson scored from the five, and the half ended with Bayside still in front, 7 to 6.

The Marlins controlled the ball for most of the second half, but the exhaustion was telling. Midway in the third period, Great Bridge climaxed a running and passing attack from their 26 with a touchdown by Rhodes from the one. Bill Magruder's kick was just right this time.

Near the end of the game, Bayside launched its final drive and, for a while, it looked like the Marlins would do the impossible after all. A Marlin pass was intercepted by Great Bridge, however, on the Wildcat 27, ending Bayside's last chance with two minutes left to play. Great Bridge ran out the clock, and the Wildcats had won their 26th in a row, defeating Bayside, 13 to 7.

The Marlins gave the Wildcats their biggest scare since last September, and succeeded in having a little revenge over last year's game.

The reason for their high morale and hopeful expectations is best ever. Under the leadership of coach George Ves-Suffolk Red Raiders on November 4. The Marlins were all over the field that crisp, cold night, and trounced the Raiders with a score of 26 to 0. The were with Deep Creek and Great game played at Cox High stadium, saw fullback Ray Emerson make all of his team's points in a fierce running battle. The passing of Gary Wittig and Mark Laubach helped, too, but it was Emerson's seemingly magical penetrations of the Suffolk line and his fleet-footed runs that replaced the Marlin win. The second team played most of the last period, Emerson being given a well-deserved rest. The win was Bayside's first shutout in the school's three-year history.

The Great Bridge game ended the football season at BHS, with wins against First Colonial, Cradock, Oscar Smith and Suffolk. Other close games were with Deep Creek and Great Bridge. Undoubtedly, the star of the team this year was Emerson, piling up heavy yardage and scoring most of his team's points. The Marlins will have his service again next year, although they will be losing quarterback Gary Wittig, a member of Bayside's first graduating class.

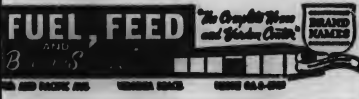

Joint Services To Be Held

A joint Thanksgiving Eve service will be held by Princess Anne Plaza Baptist and Methodist Churches, Bow Creek Presbyterian and St. Francis Episcopal at 7:30 p.m. today at St. Francis Episcopal Church, 509 Rosemont Rd.

Opening a Year Away

Virginia Beach Toll Road on Schedule

Construction on the Virginia Beach toll road is 45 percent complete and progressing on schedule after a year's work, according to E. H. Orange, Virginia State district engineer.

Opening of the road is still scheduled for December 1, 1967. Work began in November, 1965.

The Start

"They are ahead of the schedule they submitted at the start," said E. Arnold Dill, project engineer. "I would say they are about on time."

The road will be 12.1 miles long and is expected to carry 17-18,000 cars a day.

Bridge work is 30 percent finished, Orange said. The main work during the winter will be on the bridges, grading and placing of fills. Paving will start in the spring when the weather improves.

"We have had exceptionally good weather so far," said Dill. "It hardly ever rains, and there was just a little snow last winter."

The Middle

The men on the project sometimes worked through the night during the summer months to take advantage of good weather conditions. "They work overtime all the time," said Dill of the several hundred men involved on the road construction.

The four-lane, limited-access road will stretch from Atlantic Avenue to the Interstate 264 interchange at Princess Anne Road close to the old Barry Robinson School. The main toll booth will be built about at Kentucky Avenue, just about midpoint in the road, for cars traveling the full length. Other toll booths will be built at interchanges.

The End

The toll for the whole length will be 25 cents for cars, but the rate will be staggered according to the distance traveled.

Cox Hockey Team Takes on First Colonial Sat.

BY JANE RICHARDSON
Sun Correspondent

This Saturday morning at Princess Anne High School, the Cox field hockey team will make their final effort for an undefeated season. The girls play a much improved First Colonial team at nine o'clock. The Cox team enters the game riding on a twenty-two game winning streak over a period of two years. The girls have won ten straight games so far this year. Last Saturday Cox competed with other teams in the Hampton Roads District Field Hockey Tournament. The tournament was held at Warwick High School on the Peninsula. The purpose of the tournament is not to see which team can win the most games, but instead to recognize individual players. Each team plays two games. Qualified judges view the playing, and afterwards, choose an all-star District Team.

The Cox girls won both their games while at Warwick. They faced top-rated Ferguson in the first game. The half time ended with Cox ahead 4-0. Center-forward Pam Hackworth and right wing Kathy Sciorlino scored one goal each. Left inner Sandy Wilson scored the remaining two goals. Diane Motley, center half-back and Miss Wilson added two more goals to make the final score, Cox - 6, Ferguson - 0. Wilson High became Cox's second victim of the day, as the girls went on to another 6-0 victory. Individual goals were made by Miss Motley and Miss Sciorlino. Miss Wilson scored her third, fourth, fifth, and sixth goals of the game.

Bufkin Earns Navy Citation

Lieutenant Commander Charles R. Bufkin, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bufkin of 2229 Lynn Road, was awarded the Navy Unit Citation for meritorious service off the coast of Vietnam as a member of Reconnaissance Attack Squadron Nine, a unit of the Attack Carrier Air Wing-14 aboard the attack aircraft carrier Ranger. The award cited the Ranger's part in the extensive aerial day and night armed reconnaissance and air strikes in the face of the intensive hostile ground fire.

First Colonial Sports Patriots Tangle With Tigers in Bowl Game

BY FRED FARLEY
Sun Correspondent

This week the First Colonial Patriots play their homecoming game against the Oscar Smith Tigers at Princess Anne's Cox Stadium. This game will be called The Liberty Bowl, which, being a post-season college game, may land a law suit on our hands.

The Tigers started off the season as one of the football powers of the Eastern District. Midway through the season over one half of the Oscar Smith team was relieved of their Friday night job on the field for unexplainable reasons. Since that time the Tigers have not been able to regroup into a team and have been everything but powerful.

In the past two weeks the Patriots have won one and lost one. On November 4 the Colonialists traveled to Southampton,

The Patriots were riddled by penalties against the Indians but Les, Whitehorn, the quarterback, ran and passed the Colonialists to a 13-16 victory, scoring all 13 points for First Colonial.

In a game moved from Nov. 12 to Nov. 10 because of the Oyster Bowl, the Patriots played Kellam at Cox Stadium. This Thursday was a bad one for First Colonial. When the students arrived at school they found a Kellam flag flying on the flagpole. At lunch Kellam struck again, vandalizing the school parking lot. The students were riled and at a pep rally, designated to end at the normal dismissal time for the school, they stayed an extra 15 minutes cheering the team on to victory. The Colonialists started the game in a hury and completely dominated the first quarter and came out with a 7-0 edge. The Kellam Knights came alive at this point and overpowered the Patriots, winning the game by a 21-7 score.

For the start of the pre-game ceremonies First Colonial will have a parade down Atlantic Avenue from 31st Street to 17th Street. All classes from the school will sponsor a float. At half-time the coronation of the homecoming queen will take place. And to climax the affair there will be a dance in the First Colonial gymnasium from 10: P.M. to 12:30 A.M., featuring the Ad-rins.

All in all it looks like a fun night for the First Colonial Patriots.

Airman Selected

Airman Wayne C. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd C. Johnson of 957 First Colonial Road, has been selected for technical training at Amarillo AFB, Tex., as a U. S. Air Force administrative specialist.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. Airman Johnson is a graduate of Frank W. Cox High School.

DE CHRISTMAS TRAINING

The Distributive Education Service in Virginia Beach will offer pre-employment training course to students seeking part time employment during the Christmas holidays.

This ten hour course of instruction will cover study of the job interview, personal appearance, and basic sales functions. Each of the five high schools, Bayside, Princess Anne, First Colonial, Cox, and Kellam will have the classes taught in the DE classrooms by the coordinators in charge.

Each of the graduates of the course will receive a certificate of credit which is pictured below.

This course is being presented to assist the Virginia Beach Merchants in satisfying personnel demands for the increased activity during the Christmas rush. Employers are asked to give consideration to these young people who can be identified by presenting their certificates.

SAILOR OF THE MONTH

Photographers Mate Third Class Emil J. Sedik, Jr. has been selected as sailor of the month for November at Oceana Naval Air Station, the command where he is now serving. Sedik was chosen for the honor from among more than one thousand men at the Oceana master jet base. He was also recommended by his division officer and department head before being chosen by a board of senior chief petty officers. Sedik enlisted in the Navy in Chicago in Sept. 1965. He was sent to Great Lakes Naval Training Center for boot camp.

Upon graduation, he was sent to Pensacola, Fla., for photographers mate school. After completing 16 weeks of school Sedik was then ordered to Oceana Naval Air Station where he now works in the color production department of the photographic laboratory. Sedik attended high school in Highland Park, Ill., and then completed three years at Cardinal Glennon College before he entered military service.

Cox Loses

The Frank W. Cox football team finished their season with a disappointing 3-7 final record. The beginning of the season showed promise for the Cox. Princess Anne defeated Cox by a score of 47-12. PA received the opening kick off and began their drive to the goal. Minutes later they scored. Altogether Princess Anne accumulated four touchdowns to end the first half with Princess Anne ahead 27-0.

Cox managed to score twice during the second half. The first score came after a 39 yard run by halfback Weirich. Late in the fourth quarter Paul Striffler, senior quarterback, rolled-out

Better to Stay Sailor Decides

After eight years aviation machinist mate second class Eldean R. Olson, from Oceana-based Attack Squadron 42, has finally decided that the Navy is what he really wants.

Olson served four years in the Navy before being discharged from active duty in April 1959. Unable to find suitable work in civilian life, Olson came back to active duty in January of 1963. Last October 27 he shipped over for another four year hitch. Olson likes the Navy because he finds it "steady work." "At least you don't have to worry about losing your job." In summation, Olson simply enjoys working on airplanes. Says Olson, "when I walk down the street and see a plane fly overhead, I have to stop and see what kind it is."

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Happenings . . .

Oyster Bowl weekend... Saturday, a day of fun and fashion... marred by a few gusts, a sprinkling of rain... brightened by the Beach supporters whose dollars will help swell the Shriners' fund for crippled children.

A big weekend too, for young people... first big dance (there are four) of the season for the Virginia Beach Cotillion crowd. Held in the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club Saturday, it attracted some 350 older teens. Most were shoeless (once inside)... scarcely sat down... dancing, table-hopping and making innumerable trips to the coke bar. No shenanigans, no pseudo-sophistication, just great-looking young people... searching for excitement... listening to the music of their... not our... time.

Three officers of Princess Anne High School's junior class were among Cotillion party-goers: Bob Woolridge, vice president talks with Emily Warren (left), treasurer, and Barbara Byrnes, President.

Price War Plans Set By Group

Virginia Beach housewives joined Chesapeake housewives in a combined meeting Thursday night to plan their strategy in the fight against high food prices. The meeting was held in Portlock Recreation Center. The newly organized Beach group elected Mrs. Carl Zwarick chairman.

Mrs. Zwarick said it is the plan of the Virginia Beach group to boycott, not picket, area stores. Their efforts, she said, will be directed primarily at those stores dispensing food stamps or featuring other games and gimmicks which add further to the cost of food. The group will stress selective buying, also, avoiding the costlier prepackaged convenience foods.

Members have been asked to make telephone contact with as many area housewives as possible in an all-out effort to have the housewives join the boycott.

In the future, Mrs. Zwarick said, it is hoped that a Consumers' League, similar to one in Newport News, will be formed here.

Virginia National Bank had headquarters for pre-Oyster Bowl game festivities at the Cavalier Hotel. Several members of the party are shown leaving hotel to board buses for trip to Foreman Field.

Beautification Commission

Volunteers Desire Beauty

An enthusiastic response to the Beautification Commission's request for volunteers has shown commission members boards came under fire at the commission meeting also.

The number of billboard applications appearing in that day's Virginia Beach Sun, prompted one member to suggest that the commission seek a tighter restriction on the location and appearance of the signs.

Several members agreed to join her at the City Council meeting Monday to voice their objections to offensive billboards cluttering the city's roads.

Other commission action: Strict enforcement of littering fines.

Poster Contest Helps Concert

A contest among students in the Norfolk Academy art classes provided posters for the Clifford Herzer piano concert to be held at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at Princess Anne High School.

First prize winner was Lindsay Shephard, Honey Hogan won the second prize and Lane Kelley, honorable mention. Students from 12-17 competed in the contest.

Other posters have been contributed by students at First Colonial High School.

The concert is being sponsored by the Auxiliary to the Virginia Beach General Hospital toward the purchase of another obstetrical delivery table at the hospital.

Beach Tops Bond Quota

Virginia Beach has already reached 162 percent of its 1966 U.S. Savings Bond goal for 1966, according to E. V. Slatum, chairman.

A total of $341,159 of bonds have been sold through September. The goal for the year is 210,000. The percentage was the highest in the state.

Olds Nail 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Olds were guests of honor at a recent reception given by their daughter in celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Florence Bly invited some 250 relatives and friends to a 4 to 6 p.m. party for her parents in the Seateck Community Center.

The Olds have 16 children, 35 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren. Most were present at the party.

These Days Of Daisies

BY JEANNE MAGEE TUCKER
Women's Editor

Anyone who's ever launched a daughter on the holy sea of matrimony knows only too well how dearly papa pays. And sometimes he pays for a long time afterwards.

One papa, whom we know to be still off in a corner licking his wounds from a late summer wedding, sat back on his haunches recently, blinded by the sight of wedding flowers coming to life again.

Sure enough, daisies were dancing in the window box and playing ring-around-the-tree trunk where they were stuck, their bare little bottoms, sans roots, shoved hastily into the dirt minutes before the guests were to arrive. There they were left to sink or swim, without food and in an extremely overcrowded state.

Unbelievably they swam, took root and bloomed again, as bright-eyed and jaunty as the day they arrived.

If they had grown out of the woodwork indoors we wouldn't have been any more startled. True, these Johnny-come-lattes might not startle Fred Heutte out of his rose gardens or the Federation of Garden Clubs out of its hats, but to those of us who are grabbed by the mere sight of a spindly geranium in bloom, this was like having another young man ask for another daughter's hand in marriage.

It was the most soothing salve imaginable for papa's gaping wounds; unfortunately, though, it offered only temporary relief.

Our blessed little blossoms apparently had such fun at the wedding that they came back for more, but they can't be left outdoors; they'll die, warns the florist.

Look the other way and pretend we don't see them?

Scowl and throw them out, like guests who forgot to go home?

Or do we bring them in, to take over our sun room, block our view of the beautiful Lynnhaven, maybe even dominate our lives?

This would mean pots, plenty of pots, which cost money, a table large enough to hold them all, which papa must build, and more food. Plant food they need day after day.

Decisions, decisions, decisions! Always decisions.

Doris Patrick also had to make a decision recently.

She decided to hand her typewriter over to another pair of hands: hands maybe not as tender as hers, nor as loving perhaps, but hands that have been idle far too long.

So here we'll be each week... at 31st and Pacific.

lots of advises the florist. Maybe we should eat them!

Engaged

Courain, Dougherty Date Set

PALERMO, N. J.

Miss Ruth Claire Dougherty and Robert Charles Courain, Jr., both of Charlottesville, Va., will marry in the University of Virginia Chapel, Charlottesville, Dec. 25.

Their engagement has been announced by the bride-to-be's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Dougherty of this city.

Mr. Courain is a son of Lt. Col. Robert C. Courain (USA, ret.) and Mrs. Courain of Abingdon Road, Virginia Beach. Miss Dougherty is a graduate of Rutgers College of Nursing, New Jersey. She has been on the staff of the University of Virginia Hospital, is presently attending Jefferson Professional Institute in Charlottesville.

Mr. Courain is a 1965 graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He is now a second year student in the Graduate School of Business Administration of the University of Virginia.

Miss Dougherty

The effectiveness of visual aids to religion was demonstrated by a woman's club here recently.

Star of the Sea Women's Club presented a program on symbols of Christmas at its recent meeting in the church's recreation center. Some 200 non-Catholic as well as Catholic members of the community attended.

Mrs. Robert Owens, wife of Commander Owens, explained the history and displayed methods of making advent wreaths. Jesse Tree symbols and other ornaments depicting the Christmas, Comdr. Owens, now at sea, made those which Mrs. Owens displayed at the meeting.

"This is a ritual with us; the children love to help make both the wreaths and the Jesse symbols."

We have 3 wreaths here. One is composed of a large silver platter, on which I have placed 3 purple and one rose candle. On the first and second Sundays in Advent, we light one and then two candles, lighting the way for and in anticipation of the Christ child's coming. This is a joyous season.

On the third Sunday, nearing the 15th, we light the rose one, making 3 aglow. Of course they are extinguished after a time, Greenery -- ivy, laurel, pine represents eternity. I used 4000 years before Christ's coming. The color green is to decorate the circle, which The 4 candles represent the for hope. And for Christmas.

The Rev. John Foley, assistant pastor at Star of the Sea Catholic Church, talks with Mrs. Robert Owens and Mrs. Joseph Barrace, club president.

Br-r-r, Surfers Are Familiar Sight Here

BY CAROLYN McALLEN

A shivering group of surfers huddled around a fire is a familiar sight on the beach this winter.

Why would anyone in their right mind deliberately freeze themselves for the sake of a sport? The answer lies in the surf itself. In the winter months the waves are better formed and more prevalent. True devotees to the sport look forward to this time of year.

"It's like Mt. Everest," said Jerry Perdue, who has surfed three years. "You do it because it's there."

"What's crazy about surfing in the winter?" he questioned. "It's like any other sport. Golfers golf in the rain--anytime except when there's snow on the ground."

"The waves are at their best," declared Mrs. Olga Edwards, who organized the Surf Club here.

Another factor is the cost of the surf boards. Prices range from $120 up for the better ones, and many surfers want to get more use from their investment.

Winter surfing is almost completely limited to teenage boys. Girls disappear from the scene when the water temperature drops below 65 degrees. Boys will still surf until it is in the 40's. Some surfers appeared at the beach on Christmas and New Year's Day last winter.

Partial protection from the cold is offered by "wet suits". These are foam rubber jackets and/or pants, sometimes full-length and sometimes short. Wet suits do not keep out water, the foam holds the water and it is warmed by body heat. The first few minutes are the worst said Mrs. Edwards.

Short wet suits are best because the long ones are too bulky Perdue said. "You just can't move in the full-length ones."

From 25 to 50 surfers at a time surf along the beach on sunny days, usually after 4 p.m. during the week because of school. When the water temperature is below 60 degrees, they can stay in the water only five minutes at a time because of loss of coordination from the cold.

"I've seen them come out of the water blue with cold and shivering so they couldn't talk," Mrs. Edwards said.

Skate boarding on land replaces surfing from the less brave during the winter. Skate boarders congregate at the Norwegian Lady.

The Virginia Beach City Council turned the beach over to the surfers for the winter by allowing them to surf anywhere except within 200 yards of the fishing piers until May 1.

Children Risk Harm

Parents were warned of the danger of allowing small children to play alone or go to the store alone by Douglas McCloud, juvenile division of the Police Department, at the November meeting of the Princess Anne Woman's Club.

"Just recently we had a case in which a small boy reported being molested by a middle-aged man, who, when caught, had charts and layouts of children's homes, their play times and even records of times when the parents were away from home," McCloud, Policeman of the Year for 1965, said.

"He had obscene literature and pornographic snapshots in his pockets, and he operated near a school. If parents would only call the department when any suspicious or loitering person is seen in a neighborhood, we could quietly dispatch a patrol car to that area."

McCloud said that vandalism seems to be increasing, and that even small children will break and steal pieces of property. "This is a growing community in pointing out criminal neglect of children, McCloud recalled. "A baby was untied and uncared for in a motel while the mother lay in a drunken stupor behind a locked door. And to Girls' State last summer then there are cases in which we find drunken children as young as 14 at parties."

"As a whole we are working hard as a police force," he said, the state.

OLD FAVORITE AT WEDGEWOOD

Wedgewood Dinner - Theatre this week opened the third show of its fall and winter season, Erskine Caldwell's immortal classic "Tobacco Road".

The stage play, adapted from the novel by Kack Kirkland, played for eight years on Broadway (a record topped only by "Life With Father") and has probably become the most controversial piece of drama in the history of the American stage.

As a play, "Tobacco Road" has been panned as a worthless piece of sensationalism and praised as a brilliant and honest portrayal of lost and down-trodden people. It has played to full houses in great cities and small towns the world over.

It has also been closed as immoral and obscene in many places, large and small. It has been called a comedy, a tragedy, a melodrama.

In any event, whatever words are used to describe it and however critics may feel about it, uncounted millions have found in its stark and shocking picture of life in the Georgia backwoods something which strikes a sensitive cord in their hearts and minds.

It is the story of the Lester family and their fight for survival in the depressed and desolate land of back country Georgia in the 1930's. "Tobacco Road" paints a vivid and shocking picture of people who are fast becoming as extinct as the Dodo, but who cannot realize it and refuse to give up the ways of their ancestors.

Wedgewood's holiday season offering, "Able's Irish Rose" opening December 14 is grand entertainment for the whole family, but the producers recommend that the children be left at home for "Tobacco Road" due to the frank treatment of the subject matter. "Tobacco Road" plays Wednesday through Saturday with buffet dinner beginning at 7:00 and the play at 8:30. For information and reservations phone Toano 504-3236.

Child Film Scheduled

A much discussed topic will be the focal point of the film, "Child Molester", to be presented at the November meeting of the Lynnhaven Elementary P-TA. The meeting will convene at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 15 in the cafeteria.

Members of Girl Scout Troop 677, under the guidance of Mrs. Mary Stucker, will present the colors.

The second annual membership drive will be conducted during November with the room having the highest percentage of parents joining during the month receiving a cash award. An attendance prize will also be presented. Mrs. Margaret Brassel's room received the award for the October membership drive.

Employment Survey Now Underway in Virginia Beach

The Virginia Employment Commission is currently making a survey of employers in Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Chesapeake to determine just what job opportunities there will be in those four cities two years and six years from now.

The survey is being made by mail and asks employers: How many employees are on your payroll? How many do you expect to have in 1968? How many do you expect to have in 1972?

(Only about 50 per cent of the employers answer the questionnaire which is a and commentary on businessmen who stand to benefit most from the survey.)

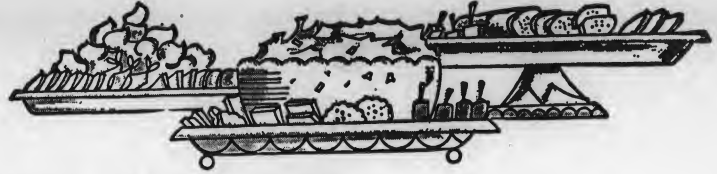

All employers are not surveyed. Rather, a representative sampling which is quite large is taken. The information is then fed into computers and, presto, counselors guide will know where vacuums exist in certain occupations and can guide young job seekers into them; employers will know whether to give for a surplus or a shortage of labor; new industry will get an idea of the labor climate and training schools can gear up to educate people in certain fields.

The last such survey was made in this area in 1958 and the last such survey was made in the state in Roanoke and Roanoke County in 1964.

The Roanoke survey shows that in 1970 there will be sizeable shortages of bookkeepers, carpenters, nurses, sewing machine operators and teachers. A person in Roanoke who is deft with figures, a hammer, a bandage and a sewing machine should be able to write his own ticket.

The Roanoke survey is just a little bit frightening in other respects. It indicates that in 1970 there will be too many architects in the Roanoke area, one too many advertising copy writers and it shows absolutely no demand for forest wardens, jewelers, lease agents, radio operators, planning engineers and public relations men.

elers, lease agents, radio operators, planning engineers and public relations men. Cheesemaker and detectives can take heart, however. The Roanoke area will need one more of each by 1970.

WVAB "Upbeat, Up Tempo, Big Band Station"

Outlet Is Companion, Says Exec

Radio station WVAB has something to offer the people of Virginia Beach, so believes Alan McLellan, general manager of the new station.

"I feel Virginia Beach deserves its own radio station for its own people," said McLellan. "Why look elsewhere for news, business news and entertainment?"

WVAB came on the air a month ago as the only station in Virginia Beach. It is programmed to broadcast "up beat, up tempo, big band" type of music and plays 90 percent instrumental records.

This type of show becomes a companion rather than a distraction McLellan said. Many people change stations when vocalists they don't like begin singing or long conversation-type shows come on.

A native of Gloucester, Mass., McLellan began his radio career as a sportscaster while a student at Boston University. Since coming to this area in 1954, he has worked as program director and announcer for WNOR, program manager of WGH and account executive for WAVY-TV.

He and his wife Jeanne live in Carolanne Farms with their son Steven, 12, and daughter Christy, 4.

"We need the cooperation of Virginia Beach itself," McLellan said, "to provide public service for the area."

Women's clubs, service clubs, churches and civic organizations should contact the station. The chief goal of the station is "to keep the people abreast of news and local affairs of Virginia Beach," he said.

WVAB at 1550 on the radio dial is a "prime time" station on the air from sunrise to sunset. McLellan explained that this is the time when radios are turned on most. After 6:30 he said, radio advertisers are penalized by television.

"I think WVAB has more potential than any other in the market," McLellan concluded.

Seagle the Seagull Is Aisrck Symbol

Anyone who listens to WVAB radio should be familiar with Seagle, the aisrck seagull.

Seagle was chosen as the symbol of the radio station and appears in flight on all its stationery, calling cards and signs. He is the brainchild of Al McLellan, general manager, who said that Seagle gives the impression of soaring and is a "symbol of looking ahead" in Virginia Beach.

The seagull was chosen because gulls are symbolic of the area, McLellan said. However, the announcers on the station "adopted" the imaginary bird as their confidant.

Meet the People at the Voice of Virginia Beach

AL McLELLAN

What do you say when a strange voice on the phone asks the names of President Lyndon Johnson's cabinet members?

If you are Carol (Mrs. Frank) Field, traffic and continuity director of radio station WVAB, you find out and answer the person.

A native of Virginia Beach, Carol knows the area and the merchants quite well, which is an asset in directing traffic for Virginia Beach's only locally owned radio station. "Traffic" is the daily schedule of the station's format and time spots in chronological order—always going at a fast pace and constantly changing.

Traffic is a big undertaking in itself, but it doesn't complete Carol's busy day. Carol has another title, just as important as the first, as WVAB's "Girl Friday." The attractive blonde gets most of the questions like "Who?" "What?" and "When?" that are telephoned to the station. One favorite caller is one who hums a few bars of a hit or old-time song for her to identify.

Once you've heard her voice you'll remember it. She often records commercials to be broadcast. She's a woman who really knows what is going on in the world—or she'll find it out fast for you.

When one man unexpectedly quit at radio station WKVK, Rick Allen found himself in the broadcasting business.

Allen, now program manager of station WVAB, used to spend his free time at WKVK with a friend who worked there. He had just passed the test for his broadcasting license when the announcer quit and he became a "weekend man" in charge of announcing on week-ends. It later became a full-time job.

Allen, a native of New York City, settled in Virginia Beach nine years ago when he was discharged from the Navy.

As program director he shares the responsibility for what people hear. He also schedules shows, and checks new shows.

One of the new shows is for and by teenagers on Saturdays. Representatives chosen by each of the Virginia Beach schools will meet weekly to discuss teenage news and issues.

RICK ALLEN

SAM SCOTT

Sam Scott, News Director for the "Popular Voice of Virginia Beach," the newly formed WVAB Radio Station is a news item himself. Although originally from Wichita, Kansas, Sam has adopted the sun and sea of Virginia Beach as home for himself and his family. Sam's family, still "on the grow" by the way, consists of his wife, Kerry and their two children, Christopher, age 4 and Mark, age 2.

Radio has become an outlet for "Sam, the Extrovert." Childhood visions of becoming a vocalist and the desire to perform was the initial factor of Sam finding his way into radio as an entertainment outlet. The transition from vocalist to vocal expression with speech was a fortunate occurrence for the local populace, which can be experienced by listening to WVAB from 10:30 to 2:30 daily for the "Sam Scott Show."

Although Art Conners used to accompany singer Brenda

Lee on the piano while he was still in high school, he never learned to read music.

Conners, now program director of WVAB radio station, is a native of Centerville, Mo. As program director he is in charge of production and station promotion helps set the style of music to be played on the air.

Taping recruiting interviews while in the Navy led Conners into his broadcasting career. After his release from the Navy where he worked in the Public Information Office, Conners came to Virginia Beach.

Still single, his main interest on or off the air is music. He plays the piano, organ, marimba and xylophone.

Hats are almost a trademark of Alice Brewer White, local radio and television personality heard on station WVAB.

"Hats complete the picture of a lady," said Mrs. White, or Alisbee as she is known to her listeners. She even wears one to the studio when she tapes her shows.

Alisbee's five-minute programs are heard four times daily Monday through Friday. They consist of fashion news, national "gossipy bits", women's news and interviews. She's already planning to tape interviews with fashion personalities in New York this winter.

Although she is originally from New York, Alisbee came to this area 20 years ago to become the first woman on radio or television in Virginia. She lived at Virginia Beach 10 years. Her career includes fashion commenting and writing for magazines and newspapers. Between January and June this year she presented 27 wig and hat shows.

"I'm strong on fashions," she says. Her search for fashion news takes her regularly to the New York Couture Group Fashion Week and American Designers Service showings in New York and the Fashion Creators' Press Week.

Earphones and Atwater Kents

Low Power, Few Listeners Characterized WSEA

The history of radio in Virginia Beach dates back to the very early days of radio. Long before networks, tape recorders, or the "Top 40" records were ever heard of, there was a radio station in Virginia Beach.

Most people don't even remember it, but back in the days of the "flapper" WSEA was on the air operating from the Cavalier. In 1927, a station licensed by the Radio Corporation of Virginia and headed by a Virginia Beach resident, Tom Little, began its meager broadcasting.

When the station was ready to go on the air, it still had no call letters granted to it, so a "ham" operator loaned the station his call, and the station went on the air as WGVY. That young man, who went on to help the station with its technical problems and with engineering field tests was Hiram Bennett, now president of Arec Electronics in Norfolk.

"It didn't have a lot of power," said Bennett. "In fact, by standards of today, it had about 100 watts."

The transmitter was located at the foot of High Street in Portsmouth, and was connected by telephone line to a studio on the top floor of the Cavalier, according to Bennett. From there wires were strung through the building down to the basement and that is now the Room Room.

It was from that room that residents of Virginia Beach heard live dance music broadcast. The orchestra played

The people danced. The microphone picked it all up, and the sounds of the merriment were heard through the airwaves and "the magic of radio". "The station could be heard in all of Virginia Beach," said Bennett.

Even though the radio reception in Virginia Beach was excellent, it must be remembered that it was not such a large area then. It covered only a few square miles along the oceanfront.

"I couldn't say how it was heard out in Princess Anne County," said Bennett with a smile.

Radio at that time had progressed slightly beyond the crystal stage and the old headphones, but still the majority of sets in Virginia Beach were battery operated when WSEA made its debut. The sets bore such names as Atwater, Croley, Kent and even RCA Victor. Radios in automobiles were unheard of at that time, and listening to the radio in the evening was considered a family event.

The family group would gather around the radio and listen to music from the Cavalier. The station was only on the air a few hours each evening and on weekends had only local programming from the Cavalier with interspersed ad-libbing from the announcer-master-of ceremonies.

There were only a few commercials on the station at the time. Advertisers were not convinced then that the "new-fangled" gadget would last or that it could do them any good. "The station had a fine announcer," said Bennett. He was brought here from WMBA in Miami Beach, and the radio audience loved him.

His name was George Sutherland, who stayed with WSEA until it went off the air. He then moved to Cincinnati where he was employed by one of the best-known radio stations in the country, WLW.

Unfortunately, WSEA lasted only about two years and 1929 saw the demise of Virginia's pioneer effort in radio. But it had been a beginning, and Virginia Beach was a better place because it had been here.

For a quarter of a century thereafter Virginia Beach was without its own radio station. Then for many years, Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County had to rely on Norfolk radio stations and others for entertainment and information. And sometimes the remarkable lack of information concerning Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County was barely believable.

In those days Virginia Beach had not yet really begun to take on the growth characteristics known so well to us all today. What is now Virginia Beach Borough today was then only the Town of Virginia Beach.

Finally it came. A radio station in Virginia Beach was built. It was called WBOF, and its studio was in Sealeck just off South Birmeck Road. The year was 1954 when the new station went on the air on the very end of the dial at 1600. The power was a whopping 250 watts, but it did more than just serve the purpose. It gave Virginia Beach its own radio station.

In the late 50's, an application was approved by the Federal Communications Commission allowing the station's power to be raised to 5,000 watts and the frequency changed to 1550. The change in power brought about remarkable differences. More and more people were beginning to hear WBOF.

Then at a time when the area was first beginning to mature, a series of misfortunes and a series of ownership changes brought about the demise of WBOF and for eight months a communication said that only a radio station can fill.

Virginia Beach was again without its own radio station until WKVK took to the air in November 1964. WKVK was owned by business interests in northern Virginia but was managed and operated locally.

WKVK's studios were in Princess Anne Plaza and many a person became familiar with the "Big K" on the sign at the front of the shopping center.

The people of Virginia Beach were beginning once again to identify with their own radio station, serving the entire area, but with particular emphasis on Virginia Beach and its people.

Then the business interests in Northern Virginia decided to sell out. Fortunately they were able to find progressive and far-thinking businessmen in Virginia Beach ready, willing and able to take over the operation of the radio station.

The name "WKVK" did not really suit anymore, and the new owners (including the Beach Publishing Corporation, publishers of the Virginia Beach Sun) all put their heads together in an attempt to come up with a more fitting collection of call letters. Our first choice was WLRC, for World's Largest Resort City. But those letters are already owned by another radio station in Cedar Rapids, Michigan.

WBOF had stood for World's Best Ocean Front, but somehow that didn't seem to suit perfectly either. Then it hit us. It had been there all the time. "VAB" standing for Virginia Beach. Put the required "K" in front of it and there we have the perfect name.

Now it's WVAB, "the voice of Virginia Beach." Radio in the "World's Largest Resort City" has come of age. Operating from News Central in the beautiful new studios located in the same building with the Virginia Beach Sun, the music, news, sports and features hit the airwaves on 1550 on the radio dial.

"We're the last button on your car radio too," says one of the music personalities. "And that makes us easy to find and stay with."

The spacious new headquarters of Virginia Beach's only radio station include a large control studio designed with the announcer in mind. All turntables, tape recorders and other necessary broadcasting equipment are at fingertip control, while at the same time the operator can have a clear view of Pacific Avenue and even the surf of the Atlantic Ocean through a tinted picture window.

So that the announcer-personality won't feel entirely cut off from the rest of the outside world, there is also a large picture window looking out into the vast office space of both WVAB and the Virginia Beach Sun.

Occasionally, when the announcer is looking particularly forlorn, someone will wave through the double glass at him. That always seems to cheer him up. Also spectators can get a chance to see the place where it all begins.

Just outside the door of this room, tucked away neatly in a corner is the Associated Press teletype news machine, which ticks constantly providing news of Tidewater, Virginia, the United States and the World. The machine runs 24 hours of every day and pours forth volumes of news and feature material.

Next door to the control studio and connected to it by another of those picture windows is a production studio, another room designed with maximum efficiency in mind. From this room a news reporter can go directly on the air, or anything can be recorded for future use.

It is in this room that commercials can be made, phone interviews can be recorded, and music and sound effects (even an echo effect to a voice) can be added to previously recorded music programs. With the exception of actual recorded music, it is in this room that everything heard on the radio station can be produced electronically.

Another picture window is a large room that serves many purposes. It is also on the front of the building at 3108 Pacific Avenue and gives a nice view of the oceanfront through a tinted glass picture window. This room is a music library, a conference room, office, a recording room for large groups of panel discussions and the like.

In addition to all this, there is an office for salesmen, another for the manager and a huge lobby for the receptionist. All of this connects directly with the news and advertising departments of the Virginia Beach Sun.

The cooperation between the newspaper and the radio station goes beyond actual ownership. The staffs work together on advertising and news. In the coverage of news the two operations compliment each other nicely. What "hard news" the newspaper cannot cover immediately because of publishing once a week, WVAB can air immediately. So the newspaper newsmen help out the radio station newsmen and vice versa.

And what could be better than a "total media coverage" of Virginia Beach, strictly designed and dedicated to the people of Virginia Beach?

Postmaster J. T. Post Office Course Ends

James M. Whitley, Sr., of Virginia Beach, has just completed the first extensive two week indoctrination session conducted by the Post Office Department in Washington, D.C., for Postal Service Officer trainees, Regional Director P. Alvin Webb said today. This indoctrination completes the first six months of an extensive training program for Postal Service Officers which is designed to equip field representatives of the Post Office Department to assist postmasters in solving problems related to handling and processing the mounting volumes of mail.

Mr. Whitley was chosen from the career ranks on the basis of a written and oral examination conducted last fall. His past performance in the Norfolk, Virginia post office also played a major role in his being selected.

and two other surveys.

Livestock cards returned by farmers to their carriers will be mailed directly to the Virginia Crop Reporting Service in Richmond. Information from each card, if properly reported, will then be tabulated and combined with other reports to year.

Farm Notes

give indications of changes in livestock on farms in the Old Dominion.

Using these facts, estimates will be made of the number of cattle and calves, hogs and pigs, sheep and lambs, and chickens on farms at the end of the year.

In addition to the end-of-year inventory counts, the number of milk cows, the calf crop, the wool crop, fall sows farrowed and pigs saved, and plans for spring farrowing will be determined from information obtained from the December 1 Livestock Survey.

The farmer is urged to fill out the card and return it to the carrier as soon as possible. It is important that it is returned since only a given number of farms will receive these cards and Virginia Beach will only be represented according to the number of cards returned.

Surf, Sand Help, Hinder Innkeepers

Surf and sand, an innkeeper's best assets in the summer, and his worst liabilities in the winter.

Buttoning up for the off-season costs money. So does the preventive maintenance to protect hostels against the chill blasts.

The Holiday Sands is one of the motels on Atlantic Avenue that closes to the public, but the operation goes on. During the winter months, the "upgrading" and remodeling is done, according to the manager, A. B. Crews.

"We have to keep a little heat on in all the rooms during the winter to keep the pipes from freezing," said Crews. "And the heat keeps the plaster from cracking and the dampness of the salt air out of the rooms."

The salt air and the sand also takes a toll on the paint on the outside of the building, according to Crews.

"The linens are taken off the bed and stored," said Crews. "Otherwise the rooms are left just as they are during the summer, and the handyman cleans and takes care of everything."

The swimming pools of most of the motels and hotels are left filled with water and chemicals are put into them. Some of them are covered with a large tarp. Those that are drained are running the risk that the concrete sidewalks will crack from the cold. The chemicals in the water prevent freezing in most cases.

In the case of the facilities that are left unattended during the winter, the swimming pools are usually sealed off in some manner to prevent accidents. The Princess Anne Inn is open full-scale all year. Owner Scott Sterling said his swimming pool is cleaned every day in the winter just as in the summer.

"And it's there ready for anyone to go in, if they don't mind the cold weather," said Sterling with a smile.

Many of the older motels and hotels which close do so out of necessity. They have no heat and no radiators. They were simply not built to remain open all year.

Closing one of these facilities is quite a problem. All water pipes must be drained. If any water is left the pipes could freeze and burst. The power is usually turned off and some of the buildings are boarded up. These are the places which require a great deal of "sprucing up" and maintenance when the facility is prepared to open the following spring, because of the toll the dampness and cold takes.

Vandalism and theft are rarely a problem, according to several motel owners and managers. To a man they all praised the Virginia Beach Police Department for patrolling the area and for checking the closed buildings carefully.

"All we have to do is notify them that we aren't going to be there for a few days or even for a few weeks, and they check the premises often and well," said Crews.

Thanksgiving Host

On Thanksgiving Day, November 24th, Galilee Episcopal Church will be host church for the Thanksgiving Community Service, sponsored by the churches of Virginia Beach at 10 A.M. The service will be an ecumenical one, with Galilee furnishing the host services.

The service will be directed by the churches, and the featured organist will be Mr. Ronald Davis, organist and choirmaster of Trinity Methodist Church, Petersburg, Virginia. Mr. Davis, one of the outstanding musicians of Tidewater, recently returned from a tour of Europe, during which he played many of the famous organs of England and the Continent.

Voter Survey Being Made

The Census Bureau of the Department of Commerce will be taking a voter survey in Virginia Beach this week.

Those taking the survey will have proper credentials to identify themselves. They will be asking if the residents are registered to vote and if they voted in the election last week.

They will NOT ask questions concerning party affiliations or leanings, candidates or who the person voted for.

The information obtained will be kept confidential and will be used for statistical purposes only, according to Mrs. Audrey L. Hayden, in charge of the survey.

All households will not be queried, only sample households in given areas.

Mexico has developed a new type gasoline.

C. of C. Poster Contest

The theme of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce poster contest is "The True Meaning of Christmas." Judges will be Mrs. Florence Mas, Jr., member of the Virginia Beach Art Association; Mrs. James N. F. Alton Tarrall and surveyor's transit are a familiar sight in Virginia Beach.

"... Keep Moving."

Second Career Starts For F. Alton Tarrall

Employers who shun workers because they are over 40 and therefore "too old" might like to meet F. Alton Tarrall. They can see Tarrall almost any day on the roads and in the fields of Virginia Beach, peer- ing through a surveyor's transit.

His face is ruddy from the sun and he moves quickly from place to place. "He gets around a lot better than some of us younger men," said a member of the survey party not long ago.

Tarrall is 70 and can do deep knee bends like a man of 20. He retired June 30, 1966 as a civil engineer in the Department of Public Works of the City of Norfolk. At the time, he was the oldest city employee from the point of service with more than 50 years behind him.

The next day he went to work with a survey party for Frank D. Tarrall Jr., and Associates, a surveying and engineering firm headed by his brother.

"Every old man has his prescription for keeping health," says Tarrall. "I keep moving all the time. I never sit down after a meal. I get up and walk around. If you eat and sit, you'll get a pot belly. I've always had a horror of a pot belly."

Tarrall puts in a full day, leaving for the field at 8 a.m. The survey party is supposed to knock off at 5 p.m. but often it's in the midst of running a line through a surveyor's transit.

Tarrall is quick to concede his second career might never have come about but for his brother. "I had two or three people offer me a job but on a temporary basis. Nobody would hire me at straight time."

None of which bothers Tarrall who strides out through the woods at a fast clip. "If you stay still, they'll cover you up."

Capt. Rever Gets DFC

Captain Louis G. Rever, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent P. Hackett of 5204 Langston Road, has received the Distinguished Flying Cross for his achievements while flying F-5A Freedom Fighters in Vietnam. Captain Rever, now at Williams AFB, Ariz., was decorated with the coveted flying award as one of the first U. S. Air Force pilots to fly the small, twin-engine jet for evaluation under combat conditions. The citation accompanying the medal also stated in part, "His extraordinary flying ability, leadership and outstanding initiative were instrumental factors in the highly successful evaluation of the F-5A weapons systems."

Captain Rever now serves as an instructor with a Tactical Air Command unit that trains pilots from allied countries in F-5 combat techniques.

Molester Movie Set

A movie on child molesters was shown at the November meeting of the Cape Henry Woman's Club by Lieutenant George Bryan of the Virginia Beach Police Department, juvenile and youth division. The movie "The Child Molester" pointed out that the world is friendly and full of fun to the average child, and that a few minutes instruction could save a lifetime of grief. Kenneth Balangi of the traffic bureau gave the club members a test to check their knowledge of driving rules. He pointed out that three main factors in accident prevention are education, engineering and enforcement. Mrs. Willard Whitehurst, safety chairman, introduced the speakers.

LEGAL NOTICES

ORDER OF PUBLICATION
The object of this suit is for the Court to determine the party or parties intended by Adelaide M. Hayes to receive each legacy set forth in her will and whether such party is authorized by the laws of Virginia to receive such legacy, or for the Court to otherwise determine the disposition that the Executor shall make of each legacy set forth in said will, and for the Court to authorize the Executor, when in due course of administration distribution is to be made to distribute the estate in accordance with its determination. Adelaide M. Hayes, who resided at 120 Covel Drive in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, died testate on January 10, 1966. Her will and codicil were probated in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach on January 13, 1966, at which time Seaboard Citizens National Bank, the Executor named in the will and the complainant in this suit, duly qualified. The will is recorded in the aforesaid Clerk's Office in Will Book 29, Page 170.

Affidavit has been filed that the following parties are not residents of the State of Virginia: Elizabeth Wallace, Rev. Gerard F. Knoepfel, S. J., Mother Rose Lathrop Home for Cancer Patients, Little Sisters of the Poor Catholic Orphan Asylum, New York Association of the Blind, The Monastery, Home for the Aged, St. Elizabeth Hospital for Tubercular Patients, Hospital for the Ruptured and Crippled in New York City, Memorial Hospital for New York City, Rosary Hill Home, St. Rose's Free Home, Home for the Aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor of the City of New York, The Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum, St. Michael's Passionist Monastery, Norfolk, Virginia.

It is further ORDERED that a copy of this Order be published once a week for four successive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun, a newspaper published in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia. A Copy-Teste: JOHN V. FENTRESS, Clerk By: PHYLLIS NEWMAN, D.C. Mann & Collins, Attys., p.p. 322 Citizens Bank Bldg., Norfolk, Virginia.

PROTECTION

As a car owner the only protection you can really count on is insurance—if you have enough. That's a mighty big "if." Liability limits that were safe a few years ago are not necessarily safe today. Call us for a policy check-up.

Good Time to Buy, Board Prexy Says

Now is a good time for many people to buy a home, Gerald Verdon, President of the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors, declared here.

Verdon, who is attending 59th annual convention of National Association of Real Estate Boards, based his statement on information presented at various sessions. About 9,000 are registered, largest total for any NAREB meeting.

Buyers who are able to make an adequate down payment will find financing available, he said, and added that those buyers able to pay cash are in even more enviable position.

Many homes are offered for sale each year as a result of owner transfers and other necessities regardless of status of mortgage market, he explained. In the current tight money situation, the qualified seeker thus has an ample selection and may be able to get favorable price.

He pointed out that home prices in general are likely to continue to rise over the years. Purchase now, he added, is therefore good investment, for principal and interest payments will remain same, while value of the property will increase.

Cox Runners Disappointed

The Frank W. Cox cross country team finished its season with a disheartening 1-4 record. This was a season of gallant efforts. Cox lost three of their meets after having placed their first four runners in the top twelve participants, only to lack a fifth anchor man. Cox's only victory was in the city meet over Princess Anne High School. Their losses resulted in meets with Maurer, Kellam, Granby and Bayside.

The Cox squad placed third in the city meet, and a surprising seventh in the Eastern District Meet. The top runners are Brian Magoon, Mike Taylor, Jody Della, and John Auster. Other team members include Rick Binder, Chris Summerlin, and Bill Roderick.

Brian Magoon was the outstanding cross country man for Cox this year. He placed in the top three spots in every one of the five meets. Magoon went on to place fifth in the Eastern District Meet which was held at the Little Creek Amphibious Base. His time of 12:23 over a 2.4 mile course earned him a berth in the state meet.

The Virginia State Cross Country Meet was held last Saturday, November 12th, in Williamsburg. Magoon's time of 13:23 over a very rough 2.4 mile course enabled him to place thirty-fourth in a field of over two hundred runners. In this meet, he beat Magoon's Vince Little, who was the favored contender from the Eastern District.

Magoon will continue running for Cox during the indoor and outdoor track seasons this year.

Markman Personnel Opens Near Mall

MARILYN MARKMAN

Marilyn Markman Personnel, 818 Maritime Tower, Norfolk, has opened a new branch office in the Commonwealth Bldg. on Virginia Beach Boulevard, opposite Pembroke Mall.

This office was opened to service the beach residents and firms in aiding their employment needs. Marilyn Markman, and her husband Bert, formed the agency in January, 1966. Mrs. Markman has had over 9 years experience in the employment agency field in Tidewater.

Working in the "Pembroke Office" is Miss Carmeline Owens, Mrs. Ann Dowdy, and Mrs. Naomi Hulse. The beach office works in close association with the downtown office. Applicants are worked by both offices, however, the downtown office specializes in national firm leads, and makes formal resumes. The "Technical Operations" Division, which interviews and places engineers, technicians, and all technical personnel, operates in the downtown office. Adams and Mr. Wright are specialists in the technical field. Any applicants living in the Beach area, may apply to the Pembroke Office, however, their application will be sent to the downtown office for technical consultation.

cahill is here

For some hidden reason, man's best friend suddenly becomes his worse enemy when man climbs on a bicycle. I don't think anybody can explain it.

I'm talking about dogs, of course, those dogs which yawn at the mailman, the meter reader, the garbage collector and midnight prowlers only to become raging beasts when a bike rider pedals into view.

Aha, some of you are dog lovers and already your hackles are starting to rise. You sense that the Rovers, the Spots and Skipper's will be maligned in the ensuing paragraphs. Rest assured. They will be.

I will indict every collie, German shepherd, English setter, dachshund, mutt and Old Dog Tray on the nine-mile circuit my family and I hike around on weekends.

We are a cycling family and we get much pleasure and exercise from our weekend tours.

We also get much terror, thanks to good old canis familiaris who has gnawed on my wife and my oldest daughter and would chomp away at the rest of the family except that we are perhaps too bony.

Nothing serious, mind you, or the situation would be treated with less levity. (Both my wife and daughter are undoubtedly tasteless because the dogs took only one bite from each.)

But listen and hear a bike rider's indictment of dogs.

A few years ago the oldest daughter got a new bike for Christmas and in a moment of largess uncharacteristic of her she donated her old one to me, her ancient Daddy, who youthfully swung aboard.

The old bike was rusty and worn but it toiled smoothly along and I felt I was doing my bit for the President's Physical Fitness Program. I rediscovered the enjoyment of being propelled by my own muscles, my legs grew strong and my body lean and hard. Vigor returned.

When I felt at home behind the handlebars I suggested to the family that we ride west from the house, turn south, then east, north and finally west on the return leg of a long tour.

The first trip around left us all badly shaken. Dogs hurtled out at us from almost every house we passed, fangs bared and glinting in the sun, while we veered, zigged and zagged like pony express riders dodging Indians.

Each canine assault seemed to get worse the farther we pedaled from home until the trip was climaxed with a two-prolonged attack by a pair of matched collies. (Lassie has since lost much favor at our house.)

These two collies enveloped us in a pincer movement, snapping at our shins and throwing flecks of saliva into the air. In a vain effort to protect my loved ones I covered our necks as bait but they ignored it. We escaped, I think, because so many legs were dangling from bicycles that the collies couldn't decide on a target.

Ah, but the dogs didn't disturb me nearly as much as their owner who stood on her porch and smiled benignly at the perilous, noisy scene.

You know the type: Kick one of her dogs while he has his teeth in you and she gets a warrant charging you with cruelty to animals.)

We finished the trip unscathed physically but bleeding emotionally. But, undaunted, we set out again next weekend. The second trip was a duplicate of the first. So were all others until we knew by heart all the dogs and their dispositions.

There were big, red dogs, a lot of bluff but still scary, a Weimaraner, a grey ghost who trotted quietly along with us for a quarter of a mile and scores of mongrels, all sizes and colors, some tied to trees with log chains (better than home owner's insurance.)

Then there was a Boxer, a really vicious dog and the two collies of such ferocity that all subsequent attacks paled into insignificance.

Helicars and Hot Water Virginia Beach in the Twenty-First Century

John Smith presses the rheostat of his Ford electric car, swings up off Virginia Beach Boulevard onto a 12-lane highway running south and settles back for the trip to his oyster farm at Back Bay.

The car silently picks up speed and rolls along with hundreds of others, many bearing out-of-state tags and pulling mobile homes and Smith notes that the tourist migration is on.

Off to his left he looks at a giant airliner coming down for a landing at the Virginia Beach International Airport. A "run-off" from these plants, the desalinization plant will produce heat which will warm the waters offshore and bathers will be able to swim far into November without suffering any chill bumps.

The program to replenish the beaches will continue although sand will have to be pumped from Back Bay, closer to the beach, to replace the sand which will be removed by the construction of another four-year college.

Overhead a strange craft, part automobile, part helicopter, flutters along. It bears Virginia tags embossed with the year 2000.

Far-fetched? Not at all. The century will turn just 35 years from now and most of the city's residents will witness changes which will come about, oyster farming -- will spring like in the future? Some things can be predicted with reasonable certainty, barring major depressions and wars. Others will be studied estimates.

Now the second fastest-growing area in the state, Virginia Beach will continue its rapid population increase and Virginia Beach Planning Director, Mason Gamage, projecting his logarithmic curves for more than a third of a century into the future, figures the population will reach 800,000 by the year 2000. (Gamage, now 41, will be 76 years old when the 21st century arrives.)

A latter-day Rip Van Winkle, waking on the sands of the beachfront, would rub his eyes in disbelief. Not one single family residence is left. As far as he can see up and down Atlantic Avenue are penhouses and large hotels and motels.

The entire northern half of the city will be heavily urbanized by 2000 and only Pungo and Blackwater areas will be comparatively undeveloped. New roads -- especially a road south from Sandbridge to North Carolina -- will hasten the development of these two sections.

The 12-lane circumferential highway on which Smith drives will ease many of the travel woes of the city's residents even as the Virginia Beach Toll Road did in 1967. The toll road, incidentally, will become a toll-free part of the nation's interstate system.

Virginia Beach Boulevard, the much-cursed artery connecting with Norfolk, will become the stem of the city's commercial and financial section.

With increased leisure and better economic standards greater emphasis will be on second homes. Almost every other family will have two homes although in many instances the second home will be a mobile one.

One real problem which will face the people at the turn of the century is what to do with the many workers who have reached retirement age.

One possibility is that they may be able to reinvest themselves into endeavors, particularly education which will still be in need of trained personnel.

Will Virginia Beach residents be able to buy a mixed drink at a cocktail lounge by 2000? Increased leisure and social activities will put pressure on the right of the people to make a choice in this matter and indications are that by the turn of the century you will be able to step up to the bar and order a martini.

If so, it'll be the biggest change of all.

A monorail is likely to go up between Virginia Beach and Norfolk a few years prior to the turn of the century and will almost surely experience financial difficulties. Like all railroads, it will need public acceptance and the public will still prefer personal cars and the new helicars which hover over Smith's head.

The helicars will be a development of the Vietnamese conflict where helicopters were used extensively. It will be expensive and only the wealthy will be able to afford them, thus adding to class distinction.

This transportation breakthrough in the air will be matched by ground travel. First there was Military Highway moving traffic in a big arc around the western edge of the city. Then came Interstate 64 and in the year 2000 there will be a 12-lane road which swings off Shore Drive in the top portion of the city, runs through Great Neck and across the city to Princess Anne Station, curving westward across North Landing River and into Chesapeake.

At least two new bridges -- one replacing the ferry between Knotts Island and Currituck Courthouse and the other connecting the Outer Banks with the lower reaches of the city -- will speed motorists along to their destinations.

Details of the ribbon-cutting will be announced later. The long-awaited opening of the first segment of Independence Boulevard marks the end of the first phase of a major road building program in Virginia Beach.

Although the new road now stretches only from Virginia Beach Boulevard to Hagood Road, construction is well under way on an extension to Shore Drive. When this section is completed, Virginia Beach will have the first four-lane divided highway running from Virginia Beach Boulevard to Shore Drive.

Battle with Sea To Last Forever

Now it starts -- Virginia Beach's annual struggle with nature for possession of her precious sand.

Each year winter hurls storms at the shore. Strong tidal currents sweep along the beach, erode the shoreward, and tons of sand are deposited elsewhere.

Against the formidable Atlantic is arrayed the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission, federal, state and city money and huge pumps which suck up sand from a short distance inland and deposit it on the shore.

The ocean washes this sand away; the sand is replenished by the machines, and it, too, is carried away.

The ocean is relentless. But, then, so is the erosion commission which was formed in March, 1952 to challenge the elements for possession of the beach.

Some winters the ocean is good and the erosion commission pulls ahead, the beach grows wider.

Sometimes the winters are bad -- like in 1954 -- and the beach loses.

Edward H. (Red) Church, chairman of the commission since it began, recalls looking at an eight-foot hole in the beach that year. "I felt sick on my stomach," he says.

The federal government rushed in with help. "I don't know what we would have done without it," says Church.

The Ash Wednesday storm was described by the Weather Bureau as one likely to occur once in every 40 years. And, since then, the beach has grown steadily wider. Last winter was particularly kind to the beach.

The sand replenishment program has cost approximately $3,500,000 since 1952. Of this amount the City of Virginia Beach has spent $2,418,981.03, the Commonwealth of Virginia $680,000 and the federal government $400,000.

How much longer will the commission have to pump sand? "Forever," says Church.

What happens when the supply of sand runs out? The commission is looking into this and hopes to learn more about beaching sand from offshore.

Meantime, the pumps run and the sand builds up on the beach and Church hopes for another winter of little or no storms.

But some good years followed and the beach was made wider under the sand replenishment program -- until Ash Wednesday 1962 when high water destroyed homes along the shore and washed away much of the work of the erosion commission.

RK Chevrolet Plans Expansion

NEW HOME OF RK CHEVROLET UNDER CONSTRUCTION ON VIRGINIA BEACH BOULEVARD.

RK Chevrolet didn't have enough room at its old location on 17th Street about four blocks from the ocean. The agency was hemmed in on all sides, so the only answer was...move.

In April that move will become a reality when RK's beautiful new home is completed on Virginia Beach Boulevard west of London Bridge.

The cinder block, brick and glass building will cover about 30,000 square feet, but the entire site is slightly over 7-1/2 acres.

Between 500 and 800 new vehicles will be able to be stored on the lot, still leaving considerable room for the display of about 200 used cars.

Architecturally, the new car showroom is unique. The design, in which the glass slants upward and outward, has won the architect, Stanley Brundage, national recognition.

"It's not weird," said owner Richard Kline. "You're just not used to seeing it. That's all."

The new RK building will be the first dealership to combine glass, radiator and tire departments under one roof, according to Kline.

Another outstanding feature is the only truck lift in the area capable of lifting any fully-loaded truck for repair.

The body shop is in a separate building. The showroom and customer lounge are located on the opposite side of the main building. Kline says this should eliminate any noise from the body shop.

The RK operation is expected to sell about 100 cars and 100 trucks a month and gross annual sales are expected to exceed five million dollars.

The payroll will be approximately $500,000 annually, according to Kline.

The building, costing about $300,000, is being built by Robert Morris, Inc., of Virginia Beach.

Plaza Roller Rink Plans Grand Opening

WORKMEN IN THE BACKGROUND, PUT THE FINISHING TOUCHES ON THE ROLLER RINK.

Group and private skating instruction is available from the rink's professional instructor, Tim Maloney, Maloney, 27, is from Baltimore, Md., where he has been teaching all phases of roller skating for the past five years.

In addition he has coached numerous Maryland champions and Regional champions. He holds a "Gold Medal" in the art of dance skating, the highest award of its kind.

Several competitive skating events are planned in the future at the rink, including a roller skating hockey game.

The cinder block, brick and steel building is 101 feet by 219 feet and is so constructed that the ceiling is self-supported. This allows unobstructed space for skating and for free and safe movement in all corners.

The rink can be reached by turning south on Lynnhaven Road from Virginia Beach Boulevard or by turning north onto Lynnhaven Road from Holland Road.

The first large roller rink to be built in Tidewater in 20 years held its unofficial opening Friday at 444 South Lynnhaven Road.

Plaza Roller Rink will have a grand opening in several weeks featuring professional skaters. The rink is the only one of its kind in Virginia, having a smooth maple floor covering 15,000 square feet. Carpeting in all copourses of the brightly-lighted rink is another unique feature.

The rink will be open every night from 7:30-11 except Sunday. Matinee sessions will be held from 2:30-5 each afternoon Tuesday through Thursday, and on Saturday and Sunday from 2-4 p.m.

British Rail is searching for 20 box cars loaded with china clay which are lost somewhere between Luxulyan in Cornwall and Grimsby where Peter Dixon and Sons, the paper making firm has been awaiting their arrival since February 28.

Comments Enliven Commission Dullness

To the casual observer a meeting of the City Planning Commission may not be the dullest gathering in the world but it certainly will rank close to the top.

To those with a definite and vital interest in one or several of the matters to come before that august body, the meeting is far from dull.

To the members of the planning commission charged with the responsibility of progress in the present and planned prosperity in the future, the meeting and what goes on there is anything but dull.

It is the planning commission that serves as a buffer between landowners and tenants and City Council. When there is zoning change to be made or a use permit to be issued, the planning commission is the place to go.

A public hearing is held on the matter there. The commission makes its recommendation to Council. Ordinarily Council respects the commission's recommendation, although Council can and sometimes does override its planning agency.

Besides a full-time city planner and his staff, the commission is made up of knowledgeable citizens appointed by Council. Many of the members are real estate men with their fingers to the delicate pulse of growth and expansion in Virginia Beach.

At the monthly meetings, anything is liable to be said by those appearing.

Often many of the remarks are made in anger and are regretted later. Sometimes they are not regretted.

Attorneys present well-prepared and well-oiled cases for their clients and sometimes sputter through rebuttals and/or questions.

The interested parties are allowed to speak freely and that is exactly what they do. Recorded for posterity at a recent Planning Commission meeting were these choice morsels. They came from all types of Virginia Beach people on all types of matters.

"Words fail me...The indignity of it...Building apartments directly across the road from Old Donation Church."

"I believe there are enough low-priced homes...."

"I am a firm believer in the old adage, 'Don't have more children than you can afford.' Gentlemen, the same goes for building shopping centers."

"It seems to me that the Lord intended it for a high-class development."

"What do you mean...you don't know which oil company wants to build a service station on the property? Who do you represent? Santa Clause?"

"Gentlemen, I am a lone wolf...."

"You would be degrading our residential community."

"Five years ago it was pointed out to you gentlemen that Pembroke Mall Shopping Center would be an eyesore and would provide too much commercial activity in the area."

"I just didn't know there would be this much opposition...."

"Can you imagine the noise from a service station coming in the window while I am in the middle of my sermon?"

".....But seven service stations in one mile."

"Now I have always been in favor of progress...."

All these and many more remarks pro and con were made by Virginia Beach citizens. They meant everything they said.

It is now up to the City Planning Commission to choose the best course, the one most satisfactory to the largest segment of the people and the one best for the future of the city.

Beach Hospital Activates Annex

With a green light from the Virginia Bureau of Hospital and Medical Services, Virginia Beach General Hospital plans to begin re-activating its facility on 25th Street.

"The license is only temporary and so is the use of the building," said Hospital Administrator Earl Willis, "until our addition is completed. Hopefully by September 1968."

The annex, as it has been labeled, will be used for less than acute nursing care Willis said. The second floor will be reopened for 22 patients first, then the first floor, for 12 patients, will be opened as needed.

The annex will open around the first of January depending on how many structural changes are required. Willis said that two walls will have to be removed in the kitchen and a new floor laid. Most of the food preparation equipment will be removed and larger dishwashers added.

Food will be transported from the hospital to the annex in heated vacuum containers, then served to patients from heated-refrigerator type trucks. Trays and dishes will be washed at the hospital.

Some furniture will have to be replaced, since it was moved to the new hospital. The annex was repainted about a year ago, annual business meeting.

Savevies was one of four new board of directors' members chosen.

The annual meeting was held at the Executive Motor Hotel in Richmond.

Rear Admiral Ira H. Dunn of the Washington Council for the National Restaurant Association's minimum wage law.

Pied Piper Plays Friday Terry Home

"The Pied Piper," a live play for children, will be presented by the Rockefeller Players at 2 p.m. Friday at the Center Theater, sponsored by the Norfolk Chapter of B'Nai B'rith.

Lucille Rockefeller, the director, organized this professional group eight years ago, and their plays have been gaining an ever-widening reputation. The cast of "Pied Piper" has extensive experience on Broadway and television.

Tickets will be on sale at the Book Nook in Pembroke Shopping Center and at box office after 10 a.m. Friday.

Savevies Elected

Michael C. Savevies, owner of the Black Angus Restaurant on Pacific Avenue in Virginia Beach was elected to the board of directors of the Virginia Restaurant Association at its annual business meeting.

Savevies was one of four new board of directors' members chosen.

The annual meeting was held at the Executive Motor Hotel in Richmond.

FOR WINTER SPORTSMEN

Sunglasses are for summer, right? Wrong! Sunglasses have become such a popular fashion accessory that they are being worn all year long.

For the man who likes the way he looks in sunglasses, the perfect gift is a pair of winter "shades" shown in the stores. Called "Hints of Tints", these sunglasses were made with the fashion-conscious man in mind. They will make him look as debonair as he did in his regular sunglasses, but "Hints of Tints" have lenses that are only lightly tinted, for wear during the darker months of the year. The fun of wearing "Hints of Tints" is that although the eyes are not hidden from view, the wearer still has the feeling of wearing sunglasses as he looks out on a pleasantly tinted world.

Set in handsome black frames and available in lens colors of Blue Pink, Sky Blue, Cool Tan and Apple Green, these sunglasses are just the thing for the man who has almost everything. ... offered by Foster Grant Co., Inc.

CARILL IS HERE

It was good to pedal up the driveway of the house uncarried, calves aching from anticipation of being bitten rather than from the exercise.
Our luck ran out the day my wife went for a ride by herself. She returned shortly in tears and with two small puncture wounds in her leg.
A little bitty dog, she said, had run out and bitten her.
Could she identify him? Yes, she said, emphatically, she could. So we climbed in the car, went to the scene of the crime where my wife promptly identified the wrong dog.
A neighbor who had seen the attack pointed out the right dog for us and we approached the owner to apprise her (are all dogs owned by women?) of the circumstances, assure her that we would not sue and tell her we wanted to be sure the dog did not have rabies.
We listened to the usual protests that little, old Chuckkins never hurt anybody before the woman agreed to keep the dog penned up for the required 14 days.
Fine.

A week later, near the end of another or our nine-mile jaunts, a mild-mannered collie unaccountably (he had ignored us all the other times we passed) raced out from his house, ignored my unappetizingly skinny shanks and overtook the oldest child who was far ahead.
"Snap," went the collie. "Yeow," went my child. Another puncture wound of the leg.
Back we followed the dog to where he was lying in his yard, yawning, of course. Again an explanation of our visit to the owner, another horrified look, assurances, more assurances the dog would be watched and then wearily home.

As a result, something has gone out of our pleasant bikerides. But even so, there is some good in what little we have learned in our many encounters with unpredictable dogs.
And for other bike riders we list three, and only three, hints in dealing with them:

1. Most dogs will stop attacking if the rider will dismount and stand by his bike. (A friend of mine met an exception and indignantly displayed his tattered trousers as proof of the invalidity of my suggestion.)
 2. Don't expect any help from dog owners. They regard you as an intruder and they resent your waking their dog from his afternoon nap by pedaling by.
 3. If you get the chance, when the dog owner is not looking, kick the hell out of the attacking dog. Dogs are not so dumb. They'll remember you the next trip and exhibit commendable behavior.
- Now that you are meagerly armed with suggestions, happy cycling. Let's hope canis is not too familiaris with you.
We'll be along just as soon as I get these puncture wounds plugged up.

As you may have guessed, bike riding means a lot to us.

Neptunes Set Record

For the second straight season and a transferred son the Norfolk Neptunes set Brooklyn "home" game, is 121, another Continental Football 028, an average of 12,102 for 10 League attendance record, the Neptunes sold 2900 season as the No. 1 citadel of the tickets in '65 and doubled that figure this season with slightly over 5800. "With the interest in seven league games in the Neptunes building and ex-Norfolk's Foreman Field is pending as it is we should 92,616, an average of 13,259 make a very strong run at upper game. The total paid attendance for 10,000 season ticket since at all Neptunes games play-holder in '67," predicts Dunn, ed in Norfolk, including pre-

The Apoplectic Woman

An apoplectic woman called last week to ask if the article by Miss Minnie Mangum which appeared on this page was a joke.

We told her it was no joke and she launched into a tirade about what a horrible thing we had done by exposing to innocent eyes the writings of a convicted embezzler. (Miss Minnie, you may recall, was convicted of stealing $1,000,000 from a Norfolk savings and loan institution. She served nine years in prison and is now living in Portsmouth. Her article was about the need to send children to Sunday School.)

The woman who called was obviously a very religious person and she was convinced that her children, after reading the article, would spring from their seats and, instead of going to Sunday School, would embark on a career of crime.

She slammed the telephone down before we had a chance to remind her that the Gospel According to St. Paul -- a primer for ethics and good behavior -- was written by one of the meanest men who ever lived. (Acts 26 th chapter)

But then St. Paul's crimes were of a minor nature. Like murder.

Thanksgiving--A Great Tradition

It has been said that nothing is so constant as change. In Virginia Beach bulldozers and earth movers give evidence of that each and every day.

And yet a few traditions and principles will hopefully be with us forever as we enjoy freedom under representative government.

A typically American tradition is Thanksgiving. It is many things to many people. It is a day of quite when the entire family gathers in the privacy of home to give thanks and to partake of that fine old symbol of the day.... the roast turkey with all the trimmings.

To others it is the day of excitement when old football rivalries are renewed and resolved. For others it means a long weekend for travel and fun. This group should give thanks for good roads and travel them carefully.

For still others Thanksgiving will not mean much at all. For the poor among us, it is merely another day. But these people still give thanks for being alive and for living in a free land.

Once again it will be a sober day for many who have members of their families in the Armed Forces. And it will be a sad day for more than a few who must endure an empty space at the table that will never again be filled. For these, the tragedy of war has extracted the ultimate price.

On this Thanksgiving let us remember that our forefathers came to this country for freedom. They found it, and whether this first Thanksgiving was celebrated at Berkeley Plantation or in Massachusetts, a wonderful tradition was begun in those early years.

Thanksgiving is a matter for the individual alone with his thoughts. Those thoughts should be worthy of a great day and a great tradition.

Our Community College

Here's a man in Virginia Beach who needs your help. He's George Ferrell, chairman of a committee which is angling for a two-year college for the resort city.

Virginia Beach has already applied for one of these colleges which will be financed by the state (the cities need only provide a site with utilities.) Applications have also been made by Chesapeake and Portsmouth.

The first of these colleges was established in Northern Virginia. (There were 2,700 applicants for admission and 1,500 enrolled the first year. The second year, 3,000 were enrolled.)

Enrollees at Community Colleges can get freshman and sophomore credits or a technical education. The schools are open six days a week -- until 11 p.m. And the tuition costs come to about $45 a quarter or 50 cents per day..

There appears to be little doubt that one of these colleges will be established in this area. Where it will be placed is up to a consulting firm which sometime soon will make recommendations in a master plan.

Eventually, there will be 30 to 35 of these community colleges in the state and by 1970 there will be three or four in the immediate area.

The state requires that each college be located on a minimum of 100 acres and applicant cities must submit three or more sites for examination by the consultants.

There can be no question of the desirability of such a facility for Virginia Beach. Working for such a facility will be the job of Ferrell and his committee. They deserve your support. Let them know you are behind them.

--AND, OH, HOW HE GREW!

New Payments For Elderly

Elderly persons not eligible for regular social security benefits can now receive special payments under an amendment to the Social Security law, according to J. A. Morrison, social security district manager. The special monthly payments, amounting to $35 a month for a single person and $52.50 for a couple, are financed out of general federal revenues, not out of Social Security tax contributions, Morrison, noted. These payments are intended to provide a small continuing income to people who may have missed out on Social Security coverage because they were too old when Social Security started or worked in occupations not covered by Social Security until recent years.

Persons 72 or older who are not eligible for a public retirement benefit from the federal government or from a state or local government retirement system can collect the monthly payments, Morrison said. Those who are receiving public retirement benefits that are less than the $35 a month for a single person or $52.50 for a couple, may be paid the difference by the new payments.

Dear Sir:

For the past few years we have been aware of the excellent record of the Virginia Beach Sun in encouraging all citizens to register and vote. In addition to registering and voting, citizens should be informed voters. The publication of the sample ballots and pertinent information concerning the election, the candidates and the issues was an outstanding example of public service to all voters of Virginia Beach. We wish to express our appreciation for the efforts of all your fine civic-minded staff members.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Richard L. Van Tilburg

Directors are Joseph C. Addington, Jr., Edward F. Brogan, Stuart Buxbaum, T. H. Callow, William J. Fanney, Ira B. Hall, Rocco J. Lassiter, F. Wayne McLeskey, Jr., Paul F. Merritt, Jr., John F. Power, Kenneth H. Relyea, G. C. Shoemaker, Millard G. Smith, and Arthur L. Westcott.

Board Discusses Federal Project

Miss Joy Wainwright discussed the Federal Project 89-10 Remedial Reading Program now operating in four schools at the November meeting of the Virginia Beach School Board.

Other business included: resignations and appointments of teachers, voting to help United Cerebral Palsy in transporting Beach children to Norfolk for school, reported attendance for October, declared Mrs. Anna Young "Teacher of the Year," heard a request from representatives of Union Kempsville High School for the Board to help speed accreditation.

A Review

'A Funny Thing Happened On the Way to the Forum'

It has a long title...A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum...but it takes longer to provide all the immensity and romance needed as the production of it at Cavalier Dinner Playhouse....tremendous.

The highly improbable musical spoof takes place in Rome about 200 B.C., but there the historical accuracy ends.

The entire action, with many hilarious sub-plots, deals with the slave Pseudolus and his determination to be set free by his young master.

All he has to do is keep a famous warrior from completing a single business deal. The captain has bought a lovely young slave girl to be his wife, sight unseen. But Pseudolus' master has fallen in love with her.

Pseudolus will be set free if he can break the contract and claim the girl for his master.

John Marlin, who plays Pseudolus, moves about the stage with all the cunning necessary to the role. His superb diction both in dialogue and in song makes him a delight to listen to.

His nervous fellow slave, Hysterium, is ably portrayed by Robert Reucker, whose masquerade scene provides one of the highlights of the production.

A Review

'Tobacco Road'

Wedgewood Dinner Theatre's current bill of fare, Tobacco Road, is not for everyone. The faint of heart and the blues-noses had better stay home, but everybody else had better make plans to go to Toano to see this classic.

The story of a long-forgotten era of American history is beautifully and sympathetically interpreted by director Paul Idings and his outstanding cast. The plot, so difficult for us to remember today revolves around the Jeeter Lester family, a desperate family being starved by their own inadequacies of the land near Augusta, Georgia, and the lack of money or know-how to do anything about it.

Their ills, their passions and their very lives in those horrible years of the Great Depression may seem exaggerated in these years of affluence, but Tobacco Road is a very real story of very real people struggling in the stark reality of life around them.

Director Idings and designer Betty Oliver have combined talents to create a completely naturalistic play, from the earthy tones the actors say and do to the mounds of real earth packed on the Wedgewood stage.

Arden and Frank Staroba, again playing husband and wife onstage, capture the pathetic roles of Ada and Jeeter Lester with all the frantic and pitiful degeneracy intended by author Erskine Caldwell.

Claudine Idings turns in another winning performance as Sister Bessie, the lustful and honestly hypocritical "preacher-woman".

Don Hayes as Dude, the no-good and stupid childlike son is excellent and Michele Black as the half-lipped retarded Ellie May could not be better. She has undue sympathy from the first.

Ron Reid and Christine Hamilton also turn in remarkable performances as the symbols of the younger generation during those poverty-stricken years.

Sandra McClung, as the forgotten Grandma Lester presents a heart-rending characterization that will not soon be forgotten.

Tobacco Road is the story of an era that fortunately is no more. Whether the people who traversed the road have changed is open only to speculation.

The Wedgewood production allows the inherent comedy to manifest itself nicely but also lets the drama and stark tragedy turn through the heat of the Georgia sun. It is a must for theatre goers. HJL quest and request

Q. My husband abandoned me and our three children six months ago and went to live in another state. Is there any way I can force him to return and support us?

A. There is no legal way you can force him to return. However, there are legal steps which can be taken which will require him to provide support for the three children and probably for you.

A check with legal sources reveals that a petition can be issued in a court here and sent to the other state. That state will then take the steps necessary to his payment or he will be cited for non-support.

Most states have reciprocal laws in these matters and the procedure is not necessarily difficult.

Circumstances of individual cases vary. You should seek legal advice immediately and let an attorney take care of the details...but you do have a case.

If you have a question you cannot answer or a problem bothering you, or even if you are looking for a reason for something being done in a particular way, let us have a try to the other state. That state will then take the steps necessary to his payment or he will be cited for non-support.

Single-copy Price: 10 cents.

Subscription Rate: $6.00 a year by mail in Virginia Beach. $12.00 a year elsewhere.

Captain "Glad to Be Back"

CAPT. EARNEST (LEFT) GREETED ADMIRAL LANHAM, COMMANDER, CARRIER DIVISION 2 AND MRS. LANHAM AFTER CHANGE OF COMMAND CEREMONIES AT OCEANA. CAPT. RUMSEY, WHOM EARNEST RELIEVED, SMILES BROADLY. RUMSEY WILL ASSUME STAFF DUTIES IN NORFOLK.

The new commanding officer of the U. S. Naval Air Station at Oceana was once in the Army. In fact, he spent 3 1/2 years in Army Reserve before joining the Navy in 1941.

Captain Albert Kyle Earnest, who assumed command of the station recently is a graduate of Virginia Military Institute in Lexington, traditionally known to be a training ground for Army officers.

He was once stationed in Norfolk as a student at the Special Weapons School, but this is his first command in his native state.

He succeeded Captain Dexter C. Rumsey, II as commanding officer of Oceana, which lies entirely within the city limits of Virginia Beach. The change of command ceremony was attended by a number of distinguished military and civilian guests.

Both Rumsey and Earnest are citizens of Virginia Beach for the excellent cooperation given to the Navy.

Captain Earnest, at the end of the ceremony noted, "It seems like coming home to be in Virginia Beach, and I'm glad to be home".

Egypt will make room for more Arab refugees.

New Postal Regulations

Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite, Jr. of Virginia Beach today announced that henceforth all first class mail, personal sound recordings (voice letters), and parcels weighing 5 pounds or less and measuring not more than 60 inches in length and girth combined, will be airlifted on a space available basis between the United States and all military post offices overseas.

Also, under Public Law 89-725 -- The Dulski Military Mail Act -- which was signed by President Johnson on November 2, 1966, second class publications such as newspapers and magazines published weekly or more often, and featuring current news of interest to the military, will be airlifted from San Francisco to the armed forces serving in Viet Nam.

Postmaster Crosswhite explained that parcels weighing 5 pounds or less and not exceeding 60 inches in length and girth combined, paid at surface rates, will be moved by surface transportation within the United States from the points of mailing to the port of embarkation. To speed up separation and delivery of these smaller parcels falling within this category, Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien directed that all parcels be clearly marked upon acceptance at the post office with the letters SAM (surface airlift mail).

This will eliminate the task of reweighing and measuring the parcels at the San Francisco Concentration Center prior to dispatch to Viet Nam or other overseas military post offices.

Postmaster Crosswhite also reminded mailers that Christmas parcels weighing 5 pounds and under, though they are given airlift priority from San Francisco to Viet Nam on a space available basis, should be mailed not later than December 1. Airmail, he said, should be sent not later than December 10.

The Investment Corporation of Norfolk will conduct its fourth consecutive seminar on personal financing planning on Wednesday November 30, December 7 and December 14. The seminar will be held at the Carolton Oaks School, 7336 Granby Street, Norfolk, from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Interested persons may register by calling Mrs. Decker at 622-6561.

The seminar will be conducted by Henry L. Zetlin.

An increase of 26% in convictions for drunkenness, with more motorists accused of drink offenses, was reported at Birmingham annual licensing meeting recently.

Mister, Be Ready for That Delightful Mistletoe Custom

Mistletoe, one of America's favorite holiday decorations, brings to mind an especially pleasant custom: that of catching an unsuspecting (or so it may seem) sweetheart "under the mistletoe" for a kiss.

The green leaved, white-berried plant really does have quite a romantic history. References to it appear as far back in history as the days of the gladiators. The Romans made first recorded use of the plant as a symbol of peace. Enemies meeting under it were required to discard their weapons and declare a truce.

Parallels in later history occur in Norse mythology which records the mistletoe plant as a symbol of love. The custom of kissing beneath the bright leaves comes from the Norse marriage rite in which it was used as a major decoration.

Another Christmas custom popular through the ages is gift giving. A great gift idea this Christmas and a sure way for a gal to ensure a smooth-cheeked kiss under the mistletoe is Remington's newest electric shaver, the 500 Selectronic.

It features an exclusive dial which adjusts to four different shaving positions. The first position permits shaving tender skin and neck areas without irritation. Second through fourth positions raise the shaving heads above the guard combs to allow progressively closer shaves for any combination of skin and beard. The shaver comes with recharging console in a black vinyl case with built-in shaving mirror.

By the way, mistletoe can be used for things other than a romantic excuse. The mantel of the fireplace or center of a Christmas wreath are ideal spots for this colorful decoration. Mistletoe berries and leaves would make a fine garland for an unusual twist in tree ornaments as well.

Most gals could take a tip from the younger generation. Some teenage girls are carrying sprigs of mistletoe in their purses these days in case the right moment presents itself and no greenery can be found.

More Christmas Cards this Year!

It is anticipated that nearly three and one half billion Christmas cards will have been mailed by Christmas Eve this year, the largest number of Christmas greetings ever exchanged. It will require about $170 million worth of postage stamps to deliver them to America's fifty-six million households.

These are the estimates of The Greeting Card Association whose member publishers account for more than 80% of the total output. The Association says that the average American household (3.3 persons) sends 75 Christmas cards or about 20 for each member of the family. Christmas card shoppers will make their selection from over fifty thousand different Christmas card designs, about 30% of which are religious in character.

The Association says that notwithstanding the many advances that have been made in Christmas card designing during recent years, nineteen primary Christmas symbols and about the same number of basic religious motifs still prevail. Among the most popular general Christmas card design symbols are Santa Claus, holly and poinsettia, and nostalgic winter scenes.

Busy Lynn at Colorado U

AND STUDENT.

Lynn Prangley, who carved herself a niche in the state of Virginia, is fast carving another in the state of Colorado. Lynn, Miss Virginia Beach, is one of 10 freshman applicants from a class of 730 who were accepted for membership into the Silver and Gold honorary scholastic fraternity. Grades have to be above 90 with poise and personality a prime consideration.

A native of Colorado, Lynn chose the University of Colorado at Boulder for her college education. It is also the school where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Prangley, met.

Already Lynn has become a part of university life. She has pledged Delta Gamma social sorority, although she cannot live in the sorority house until her sophomore year.

In her spare time she models for a downtown department store in Boulder. "It helps pay for clothes," she said, "and helps me get dates, but my studies come first."

A graduate of Princess Anne High School where she was a cheerleader and B student, she was chosen by her competitors in the Miss Virginia Beach contest as "Miss Congeniality" too.

State Senator William P. Kellam introduced her before the General Assembly last year where she made a forthright plea to lower the voting age to 18.

Lynn, who received a $600 scholarship from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, was unable to put in a planned appearance in the Oyster Bowl Parade because of midterm exams. However, she promises to visit her adopted city during the Christmas holidays.

Minister Receives Grant To Study Seatack Homes

The Reverend L. W. Chase is a relative newcomer to Virginia Beach. He came here from Danville to organize a new church congregation.

At present his small but growing congregation is meeting on Sundays in the Seatack Community Center.

Plans for a church "intime" are in the works.

This would be the end of the story were it not for the minister.

The Reverend Mr. Chase has recently been awarded a one-month Ford Fellowship to study in Chicago at the Urban Training Center for Christian Missions.

He is studying the structure of city housing, consumer organizations and any special problems to be faced by the people.

"We are looking at these things purely from a sociological point of view," said Mr. Chase.

To complete the terms of the grant he will then return to Virginia Beach and apply some of the solutions to a specific problem of his choice to a situation in Seatack.

THE REV. L. W. CHASE HOPES TO HELP DO AWAY WITH HOUSING CONDITIONS SUCH AS THIS DEEP IN THE SEATACK COMMUNITY. THIS PICTURE OF RESIDENCES AND JUNK WAS TAKEN AT THE FOOT OF UNPAVED JACKSON STREET.

"I feel sure my field of study in Seatack will be housing," he said, "although I have not fully decided."

He added, "From what I can see in Seatack, proper housing is an area that needs much study."

The soft-spoken minister admits that travel to and from Chicago for study, his ministerial duties and trying to study his new community is keeping him quite busy.

While he was in Danville, he was minister of the High Street Baptist Church for 12 years. The church figured heavily in civil rights demonstrations in Danville in early 1963.

Prior to several protest marches, meetings were held at the church.

It is generally accepted that Mr. Chase was highly instrumental in rewriting the City Code in Danville and with working with area businessmen to do away with much discrimination.

"The overall picture had to be adjusted," he said, "and I feel that Danville is a much better place to live now."

'I'll Buy That'

BY JEANNE MAGEE TUCKER
Women's Editor

The heat's on the billboard boys but the chill's on the supermarkets: the ones tagging stamps that is, and very few aren't in that category.

The idea is to boycott. Stamp out the stamps, cut the contest and eliminate the frills. Give us food, not folderole, say fed-up housewives.

I'll buy that.

But I wonder how many others will -- really.

The something-for-nothing factor, however untrue, is a tough one to top. Unloading groceries to reach the stamps is like buying cracker jack only for the silly little giveaway in the box. We even have a friend who gave five books of trading stamps as a wedding gift. (The poor-as-church mice couple thought it was great!)

If you're thinking I'm a traitor to the cause you're wrong. I'm simply skeptical and not at all sure that the women on the warpath will really shoot to kill.

Maybe I just don't trust them completely.

Maybe I think they'll wait and shop at the all-night markets, hoping no one will see them.

Stores not on the stamp circuit are pretty few and far between.

Maybe I think the women will simply end up spending their dollar saved on food for gas to get them to the no-stamp stores.

Gas stations give away stamps, too, you know.

Of People and, Places and Things:

Carroll Trant, home after surgery fit as a fiddle, home too. Diane Burton, last week on a pre-Thanksgiving holiday. She's a student at Stuart Hall in Staunton, The Fellowship at Eastern Shore Chapel, cooking and serving a Sunday night spaghetti dinner, thereby adding some $90 dollars to their treasury. Tennis buffs Gerry Ashburn and Nancy Batchelder, in slacks and tennis skirts, bouncing into the Galilee Bazaar Wednesday straight from the P.A. courts where the Polar Bears play every Thursday. The absolutely great wide, wide bowtie retired admiral Gerald Wright was pictured in recently; so completely right for him. The parade of country-squirish looking gentlemen in and out of a nearby neighborhood drugstore. Our Mayor among them. Many still bald-kneed, reluctant to stash away Bermudas and unstash the corduroys.

After all, this is the Beach. And the sun's still shining, despite that chill around the supermarkets.

For a Personal Touch

Make It a Crewel Yule

BY CAROLYN McALLEN

Finished your Christmas shopping? If not, consider doing some crewel embroidery for a present with a personal touch.

Crewel, by definition, is any embroidery done with wool. Examples include everything from pillows and handbags to high fashions. Embroidered sweaters are particularly stylish this year.

Anyone who can embroider can do crewel, reported a spokesman for A Knitting Manor who said basic embroidery stitches are used.

There's been quite a bit of interest in crewel here--more than we can supply, said Anne Blair of Anne Blair, Inc. She said that the greatest interest is from the middle-aged women up. "Not the elderly because it's hard on their eyes," she said. It's not so hard as it is tedious.

One crewel enthusiast Mrs. Claud P. Bonney Jr. of 4603 Myrtle Ave. who designs all her own patterns. Patterns can't be stenciled on wool like they can on linen or burlap, she said.

Mrs. Bonney, who knits suits and sweaters for herself, also does embroidery work for a local shop. She makes crewel alphans and bags for bazaars.

When she isn't doing crewel embroidery or knitting, she works on needlepoint and plays bridge. She's a bridge Life Master.

I can't stand doing nothing, explained the silver-haired grandmother.

Mrs. Brownley said she can finish embroidering a sweater in a day, if I don't do anything else.

Monogrammed sweaters also are popular now, but Mrs. Brownley doesn't just do plain monogramming. She embroiders intricate little flowers and leaves into the design.

Kits are available for many crewel projects including pictures, handbags, carry-alls, pillows and chair seat covers. But, according to local shop owners, many women prefer to design and make their own things. A new fad is making carry-all bags from rug backing then working a design in wool along the top.

Some of the designs are from old museum pieces, said Margaret Fantone of Margaret Fantone's Knitting Shoppe. Others are new.

The biggest problem is in blending colors to make the design look pretty she said.

Prices of kits vary greatly according to the kind and quality of materials included. In them, but many attractive and comparatively inexpensive items can be made with a little care and patience.

Christmas Home Tours

The annual Williamsburg Homes Tour and Flower Show will be held December 2-4, sponsored for the seventh year by the Green Spring Garden Club for the benefit of the Williamsburg Community Hospital.

"It's Beginning to Look Like Christmas" appropriately is the theme as five homes are decorated for the holiday season and opened to the public.

Included are two homes from the restored area and three in choice residential areas. The homes will be open from 2-9 p.m. December 3 and 4-7 December 4. Candlelight will be used for hours after dark.

Open in the restored area will be the Norton-Cole House on Duke of Gloucester Street and the Moody House on Francis Street. Other homes will include those of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Kennedy, 115 Laurel Lane; Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Robertson, 105 Oxford Road; and Dr. and Mrs. Fred B. Devitt, 308 Burns Lane.

Visitors on the tour are requested to wear walking shoes both for their comfort and for the protection of floors and rugs in the homes. Block tickets are on sale for $3 or $1 for each home. Children under 12 are admitted free if accompanied by adults. Tickets may be purchased at the Williamsburg Inn or at any of the homes.

Langermans Receive Award

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Langerman of 401 Ramapo Court received the "Arrowhead Yard of the Month" award for November from the Arrowhead Garden Club.

Yards were judged by Fred Heutte, widely known landscaper and horticulturalist.

Runners-up were Mr. and Mrs. John B. Ellis, 5612 Chesapeake Dr., Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Holcomb, 5801 New Ottawa Road and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cohen, 252 Ursula Road.

As Johan Franco Sees It

A Look at the New Met

My first encounter with the fabulous new opera house in New York's Lincoln Center was a most propitious one with the one act, non-stop, concise ELEKTRA by Richard Strauss with an all-star cast headed by the truly stupendous Birgit Nilsson in the title role of the querulous, mad princess who sets out to revenge the murder of her father Agamemnon.

I could not help but think of the potential magic by sheer mechanical means alone this forty seven million dollar theatre is capable of, when here a perfectly satisfactory presentation was done with no other tricks than particularly subtle lighting imbuing the stage and its occupants enforcing the musical texture of the work. The steel blue cone which drooped Elektra and which followed her around in her contortions and agonies enhanced every facet of both the music and her performance of it.

This was truly opera in its true sense, as Wagner had dreamed it in Bayreuth and which indeed still has a great and promising future, if the music of the work has enough power in it to keep out attention. That Strauss's Elektra is such a masterpiece was abundantly clear at this hearing and viewing. It was composed at the zenith of his creative and long life some sixty years ago and contains some genuine inspiration, a rare commodity for maestro Thomas Schippers, never appeared this eloquent and exciting from start to finish, and almost completely devoid of the familiar Strauss-ian mannerisms. This opera is really a symphonic poem in seven psychological subdivisions. The violent action taking place in the last portion of the work is entirely off stage and invisible to the eye but illustrated in lurid detail by both music proper and its proponents on stage and in the orchestra pit, and is without a doubt the foremost example of Strauss's mastery in depicting situations in a musical language all his own, his beloved "painting in tones."

ON STAGE AT THE MET

Though the new "Met" is obviously delighted to show off its technical wonders in the new productions of the season, it seems to me that the opera of the future will require less and less outward stagecraft and more psychological and inward delineation of the musical tale it is to tell. Wagner hinted at this though he could not achieve it in his day, Alban Berg equally hinted at it though the productions of neither Wozzek nor Lulu have thus far been visionary in the same measure their scores are. It is curious to say the least, that we have to go back to Strauss to learn which way opera is to develop if it is to flourish creatively and not to degenerate into a merely grand spectacle with music.

Though the new met is celebrating its new house with an avalanche of new productions I venture to predict that this one of Elektra can not be topped in its perfection and I highly recommend that all music lovers of the Tidewater area wide black belt and make a border at the lower edge. Make a belt buckle from aluminum foil.

For the face, cut a semi-circle of white construction paper about five inches deep and glue on. Paint on eyes with a cotton swab and pop a red Christmas tree ball in place for the nose.

To make Santa's three-dimensional beard, punch holes along the rim of the face. Then insert cotton swabs in the holes.

For arms, glue on strips of red paper six inches long and three inches wide. Shape feet from black paper.

Take a Box of Cookies.....

For the last few years, many Americans have been doing things the British way. Our Modish manner of dressing is influenced by our English cousins; hairstyles for men, as well as women originate in London; and the hit parade is sparked with Her Majesty's singing ambassadors.

Now the invasion is complete. The British, who have a marvelous way with "sweets" and "trifles" as they call their desserts, are inspiring delicious recipes.

British weather, like ours at this time, is changeable; warm one day, cool the next. So it's not surprising that the English like a versatile dessert that's equally good served warm or chilled. Royal Apricot Trifle is a flavorful combination of chocolate cream-filled cookies, apricots, lemon rind, milk, eggs and sugar. It's a jolly way to finish a good meal. Here's how to prepare this easy-to-make new dessert:

ROYAL APRICOT

TRIFLE

- 40 Hydrox cookies
- 3 eggs, separated
- 2 jars, strained apricots (4 - 1/2 oz.)
- 1 tsp. grated lemon rind
- 2 cups milk, scalded
- 6 Tbsp. sugar

Break cookies into 6 to 8 pieces each and distribute evenly into 8 six-ounce glass custard cups. Scald milk in top of double boiler over hot water and heat until tiny bubbles appear around edges. Beat egg yolks, blend in strained apricots and lemon rind; gradually stir in scalded milk, mixing well. Pour mixture evenly over broken cookies. Place cups in baking pan. Fill pan with warm water to a depth of about 1-1/2 inches around custard cups. Place in moderate oven, 350 degrees and bake for 15 to 20 minutes or until firm. Remove from oven.

To make meringue, beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually add sugar and beat until stiff peaks are formed. Spoon meringue over tops of cups, touching sides. Return to oven for another 10 minutes or until meringue is golden brown. Remove from pan. Serve warm or cool with additional Hydrox cookies. Yield: 8 servings.

Golden Age Clubs To Have Dinner

The Golden Age Clubs, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Recreation Department, Union Kempsville division, are making plans for their first fellowship dinner to be held on Thanksgiving Day at the Seatack Elementary School cafeteria at 3:30 p.m.

The menu will include turkey, ham, chicken, green vegetables, potato salad, candied yams, green peas, cranberry sauce, cake, pie, coffee or tea or punch.

The participating groups will be: Lynnhaven under the leadership of Mrs. Cherry Sawyer; the Atlantic Park group led by Mrs. Utoka Hite; the Creeds group led by Mrs. Gladys Jackson; the Blackwater group led by Mrs. Marcella Reid; and the Nimmo group led by Mrs. Teressa Brown.

Cherries Featured In Holiday Dessert

Gourmet Sells Famous Recipes

With today's miraculous convenience foods many dishes can be made so quickly that no advance preparation is needed. For example, in Quick Cherry Dessert, Aunt Jemima Pancake Mix and a can of Christmas-red cherry pie filling combine to make a delectable cobbler-type dessert. In-A-Wink Waffle Sandwiches make use of prebaked frozen waffles for a lunch or supper dish. Make the topping in advance, if you like, and refrigerate. Christmas carolers would welcome this snack on a snowy evening.

QUICK CHERRY DESSERT

- | | |
|----------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| One 1 lb. 5-oz. can cherry pie filling | 1/4 cup sliced blanched almonds |
| 1/4 cup Aunt Jemima Pancake Mix | 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted |
| 1/4 cup firmly-packed brown sugar | |

Pour cherry pie filling into 8-inch square baking pan. Combine pancake mix and brown sugar. Sprinkle evenly over cherry base. Top with almonds. Drizzle with melted butter. Bake in preheated moderate oven (375°F.) about 30 minutes. Serve warm or cold with a scoop of your favorite ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

IN-A-WINK WAFFLE SANDWICHES

- | | |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| One 9-oz. pkg. Aunt Jemima Toaster Kitchen Frozen Waffles | 1 tablespoon instant minced onion |
| | 1/4 cup finely-chopped green pepper |
| | 1/4 cup mayonnaise |
| | 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard |

Prepare frozen waffles in toaster or oven according to package directions. Spread topping made by combining all ingredients on waffle sections. Heat in preheated hot oven (400°F.) for 4 to 5 minutes or until cheese is melted. Makes 6 servings.

There's a story going around that mortgage money is very hard to get.

Well, maybe.

Here at Mutual Federal, though, we're making first mortgage loans on selected, improved property just like we did in 1965 ... or 1949 ... or 1889. We have, as a matter of fact, millions available for sound loans on acceptable property in our area. Gas Stations Problems Multiply Almost everyone will agree that service stations are necessary for operating cars, but not everyone wants one next door or even down the street. The Virginia Beach City Council recently turned down a zoning application for another service station in Princess Anne Plaza because of complaints from residents that there are already too many there. A recent count showed there are presently nine in the Plaza area with one more under construction. Another has gone out of business in the last year.

What determines where a station is to be built? A check with the major oil companies revealed that basically the same plan is used by all. Maps of the city are kept up to date showing major traffic arteries, population centers, shopping centers and proposed construction. Pins or thumb tacks mark where the company's stations are located. When a potentially profitable new area develops, efforts are made to acquire land for a station.

This is what often creates a problem when several oil companies have the same idea about the same area, and soon three or four corners at the same intersection are covered by service stations. On busier streets there is usually business enough for all. But sometimes there is not. And in residential areas homeowners object to the traffic and noise service stations attract. There is also the fear that surrounding property will become commercial.

Some land is bought outright by the oil companies, the station built, and then it is leased to a manager trained by the oil company. When a land owner won't sell, he is often willing to lease the property to the oil company as an investment.

A service station in a good location is a profitable business for both the manager and the oil company. But profit depends on competition plus the number of services offered.

Many stations are open seven days a week until 10 or 11 at night. A few are open all night. Some provide a towing service to attract more customers. Others offer trading stamps or run different types of contests for prizes.

Another big factor is the tourist season. During the summer tourists bring in approximately 300,000 cars, not counting local visitors to the beaches. But service stations are not seasonal. There were 49,415 cars registered to permanent residents of Virginia Beach as of November 1. There are between 65-70 service stations.

Meanwhile more people are moving to the Beach, more subdivisions are being constructed, and so there will be more service stations.

"AMOS The ANGELFISH And His Sweet Tooth!"

Copyright 1966 by Carl Cahill

BY CARL CAHILL

Amos the angelfish had a sweet tooth. He didn't know he had a sweet tooth until the day someone dropped a piece of cake into his tank at the aquarium. The crumb was from a chocolate cake and Amos watched it sink to the bottom. Then he swam down and ate it. Amos had never tasted anything sweet before. All his life he had eaten only dried fish food. So when the piece of cake touched his sweet tooth Amos felt it go "zing." The sweet taste made him happy. It made him so happy he jumped out of the water. He looped the loop under the water and he swam upside down. When he stopped to rest his mouth watered for more. Just then a butterfly named Ben flew in an open window. "Ben," said Amos, "I've just tasted something sweet and it makes my tooth tingle and my mouth water. Where can I get some more sweets?" "That's funny," said Ben. "I just happen to be on my way to gather some nectar from the flowers in this building." "Nectar? What's nectar?" asked Amos. "Nectar is a sweet juice we get from flowers," said Ben. "It's sweeter than anything in the whole world." "Bring me some," begged Amos. So Ben flew off to gather nectar for Amos. In a little while he flew back and dropped some nectar in Amos' tank.

Amos gulped it down. His sweet tooth went "zingo" and Amos did a backflip, a tail stand and a rollover in the water. "Ben," cried Amos, "this stuff is so good I've got to have more. Bring me more." So Ben flew away again and got more nectar. But the more nectar he carried to Amos the more Amos wanted. Amos started doing handstands, pushups and hanging from the side of the tank by his tail. He called for more and more nectar. Ben sent for other butterflies to help feed nectar to the fish with the sweet tooth. But Amos ate all they could bring. He was so happy he was whirling around in his tank like an eggbeater. Ben went out and asked some bumblebees and hummingbirds to help, too. Soon the aquarium was full of butterflies, bees and hummingbirds, flying back and forth between the flowers and Amos' tank. There were more butterflies, bees and hummingbirds than people. There were so many butterflies, bees and hummingbirds that visitors to the aquarium could hardly see each other. The people got in the way of the butterflies, bees and hummingbirds and they bumped into them. "Eek," screamed a woman when a butterfly brushed past her ear. "Oh, my," yelled a man as a hummingbird crashed into his cigar.

"Help," cried a little girl when a bee got in her bonnet. The man who took care of the aquarium came running. He saw all the butterflies, the bees and the hummingbirds and he got a broom and tried to chase them out. The people got in his way, the butterflies, the bees and the hummingbirds got in the way of the people and the broom got in everybody's way. Amos was going round and round in his tank. The man in charge of the aquarium tried to hit a bumblebee with the broom. He missed and hit the man with the cigar. Everybody tried to get out at the same time. In the rush Amos' tank was knocked over and Amos fell out and slid across the floor between the trampling feet. He slid and slid and crashed head-on into the wall. "Plink," went his sweet tooth as it fell out on the floor. When everybody was gone the man in charge of the aquarium got a mop. He mopped up the water, picked Amos off the floor and dropped him in a tank with three catfish while he filled Amos' tank. The butterflies, the bees and the hummingbirds flew out of the window. Amos is now back in his tank. When anyone drops a piece of cake in the water for him he swims the other way. Without his sweet tooth Amos doesn't care a thing about sweets.

DISCUSSING SEARCH FOR PEACE

ROME, Italy—Edward M. Lindsey (right) President of Lions International, explains the world wide service organization's "Search for Peace" project to Pope Paul VI in a 25-minute private audience held in Vatican City. The Pope, who himself is very active in promoting World Peace, had words of high praise for the 800,000 Lions around the world for their efforts in getting Youth interested in thinking and writing about peace.

Youth between the ages of 14 to 22 in 135 countries of the Free World are urged by Lions International to write an essay on the theme: "Peace is Attainable" for a $25,000 first prize, offered by Lions International. Mrs. Lindsey is in center (left) and the Right Reverend Monsignor Paul Marcincus, who translated for the Holy Father during the meeting held in the papal private chambers, is center (right).

Checking out one of the first 1967 model shipments from Ford Motor Company's Norfolk assembly plant are James F. Shank (right), plant manager, and M. B. Richardson, manager of Ford's Richmond sales district. The plant, only automotive assembly facility in Virginia, produced a record 111,843 cars and trucks during the 1966 model year, up 8.2 per cent from the previous record.

What does an accident cost? Add to the item of repairing cracked-up cars and mending mangled men the court costs and legal fees, and don't forget the time lost from work by drivers and passengers; even if no injuries require hospitalization, there may be days of court hearings spread out over a couple of years.

You're beginning to get an idea of the total -- but it's really only a sub-total. What about the people who are delayed an hour or more by the accident? Chances are that thousands of pay envelopes will be an hour's worth less, for those who punch a clock; and hundreds of companies will lose thousands of hours of production time.

And we haven't even mentioned the cost of gasoline and other vehicle operating costs for all the vehicles during the delay time.

Then add in the cost of probable accidents later on in the traffic stream, caused by those who slow down to gawk, and also by those who try to make up the lost time. The second collision in a series may be within sight of the first, or minutes and many miles away from Virginia Beach, but the link is there--in the people.

Just congestion -- not accidents, or doctors, or pay lost because of accidents -- just the timing delay itself, is estimated to cost us more than 13.5 million dollars a day! Inconceivable, isn't it? But let's take just one item to mull over for a minute.

Everything in your supermarket gets there by truck, and most trucking concerns have their drivers on the road -- and the payroll -- a minimum of two hours more than the actual driving time from dock to destination and back. Neither the driver's pay nor the truck operating costs stop because of delay. The traffic jam is figured in what you pay the girl at the check-out line. So, the price of your loaf of bread includes delivery charges, and one of the costs is congestion caused by inadequacies in our three-part highway system: road, car and driver.

Nobody wants to be a bad driver, and practically nobody thinks he is. If he did, he'd do something about it. We all know people who keep going back to the golf pro for instructions; but how many do you know who, once they have a license to drive, ever admit they have a slice in their left turn, or a hump in their following-distance judgment--much less paid good money for expert coaching?

This column will try to help you eliminate the hooks and slices in your traffic driving and make it safer, easier and cheaper for you, with a view to getting you where you're going quicker with less exasperation. It's a large order, but it can be done if we all work at it.

Right in our own backyard

At Jamestown, Virginia, we have the Susan Constant in exact replica. Norfolk craftsmen carefully reproduced the tiny ship that brought 71 men to this strange new world. Climb aboard, and wonder how a ship so small could hold so much courage.

Would you like to see an authentic Indian canoe? You can. Right in the Chesapeake Bay. And here's another boat to be proud of. The Moback—Virginia-designed and Virginia built for Virginia sailing. Only now you'll see it up and down the entire East Coast.

While you're boat-watching, don't miss the port area of Hampton Roads. More than 100 steamship lines make nearly 6,000 sailings a year from this seaport to some 300 ports all over the world.

We're lucky, you know. Our state has waters for fresh and deep sea fishing, waters for surfing, waters for sailing and waters for commerce. And the boats to go along. Historic boats, modern boats, working boats, power boats, sail boats. They're all right in our own backyard. Don't miss any of them.
